Record Notes

A heavy snow-storm the day before foretold slight chance of starting north on the morrow. But Wednesday morning the sky was clear, and the party was early at the Eastern Railroad Station, well equipped with a liberal supply of warm clothing and extra wraps, in compliance with the words of warning sent out by the Committee.

Being comfortably settled in a private car, furnished by the Railroad Company, the party was in a mood to enjoy the novelty of the trip, and after passing Wolfeboro Junction, to watch with interest for Mount Chocorua, the first of the line of snowy peaks, then Moat, Kearsarge and Bartlett; how different the view from the familiar summer landscape!

The trip passed all too quickly, and in good time the party was landed, bags, bundles, rugs and wraps, at the quiet Glen Station, and received a hearty welcome from Mr. Wentworth.

A logging team that had been transformed into a capacious sleigh was rapidly filled, and the enjoyment of a real country sleigh-ride was soon a reality. The reception at Arden Cottage, with fires blazing in the two huge, open fireplaces, followed by an acceptable call to the cheerful dining-room, formed a fitting close to the first day's experiences.

The comforts of Arden Cottage, with its open fire-places in the main rooms and cosy little "air-tights" distributed here and there in the chambers, made the time spent within doors most enjoyable.

On Thursday a trip through Crawford Notch furnished an opportunity to marvel at the seasonable aspect on every side. The mountains were very different from those of summer as they frowned darkly across the desolate valley; bare forests covered their sides, with here and there patches of pure snow. The ice effects in fantastic form made a novel decoration of the rocky slopes.

A sleigh-ride with a picnic dinner at the country hotel at Conway Corner—the novelty of coasting on a pung down the rugged hillside by moonlight, and an evening tramp to the summer-house on Sunset Hill for a view of Mount Washington, majestic in form, clear in outline, pure and white, glistening in the moonlight—each added a feature to the first winter excursion.

An early start was made on Saturday to catch the morning train for Boston. The morning was clear and cold; at a bend in the road Mount Washington came in view, its tip tinged with the faintest suspicion of rose, which deepened and crept down the white sides as the train started from the station. The experience of that morning was worth the whole journey.

It has been stated that one pair of snow-shoes formed the outfit of the entire party, and that during the stay two of the men succeeded in making the difficult ascent of Thorn Mountain.

An interesting account of this excursion, by Mr. John Ritchie, Jr., will be found in Appalachia, Vol. 3, page 40, from which the above is in part selected.

JACKSON, N. H.

January 18 to 23, 1883

Professor W. H. Pickering's record is as follows:

On the morning of January 18, 1883, a party of twenty-three left Boston for Jackson, N. H. Splendid weather, but windy.

January 19—Train to Fabyan's and return.

January 20—Drive to Jericho in the morning in a slight snow-storm. To Goodrich Falls in the afternoon.

January 21—Climbed up brook above the falls on snow-shoes in the morning. Drove to North Conway in the afternoon.

January 22—Started about ten o'clock and drove to Glen. Thermometer 9° when we started and 2° at Glen; returned in the late afternoon. Candy-pull in evening.

January 23—Left Jackson at 6, A.M., for Boston. It was quite dark, and we drove to the station by the full moon and starlight.

(See Appalachia, Vol. 3, page 196.)

William B. Clarke	S. W. Scudder
Miss Julia C. Clarke	Gardner Scudder
Miss C. L. Parsons	Mrs. J. H. Thorndike

Record Notes

The party seems to have been well equipped with snow-shoes and to have spent a fair amount of the time exploring the country round about on snow-shoes, the snow being quite deep, with about one foot of light snow on top. The ladies of the party seem to have taken the most interest in the sleigh-rides.

The event of the trip was an attempted ascent of Mount Adams on Saturday, January 26. Messrs. Bullock, Clarke, Pickering and Scudder, with Hunt and Watson as guides, started about 7.30 A.M., with the temperature about zero, clear weather, wind fifteen to twenty miles per hour. For Mr. Scudder's very complete account of this trip, see Appalachia, Vol. 3, page 314.

FORMATION OF THE SNOW-SHOE SECTION

A meeting of members of the Club interested in snow-shoeing was held December 10, 1886, the result of which was the formation of a Section.

By-laws were adopted at this meeting and action was taken requesting recognition of the Section by the Council of the Club. The annual meeting was held on January 14, 1887, at which the officers of the Section were chosen, namely: Chairman, Rosewell B. Lawrence; Secretary-treasurer, John Ritchie, Jr.

During the winter of 1886-7 two successful meets were carried out; three others which were contemplated lacked the very necessary element, snow.

The second annual meeting was held January 6, 1888, the same officers being elected for the ensuing year.

The Section numbered forty-six members, of whom twenty-six were provided with snow-shoes. See Appalachia, Vol. V, page 232.

Record Notes

On Tuesday, February 16, twenty-seven Appalachians left Boston for Waterville, N. H., stopping for dinner at Plymouth, and driving from Campton Station to the Elliott House.

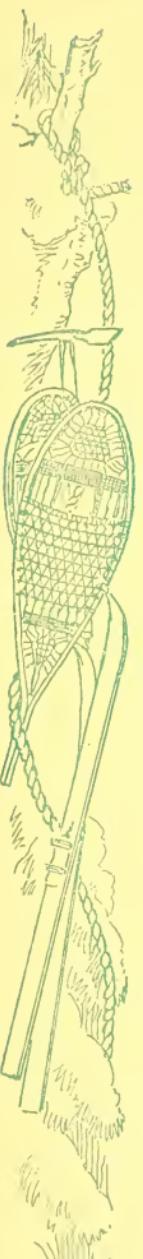

Wednesday was cold and windy, but twenty-five of the party visited the Cascades and took a snow-shoe walk in the woods.

On Thursday a number went to Osceola Path in the forenoon and took a walk via Swazeytown in the afternoon.

Friday was warm, and a party of fifteen rode to the base and ascended Noon Peak. Five of the men continued on and ascended Sandwich Dome.

Some of the party returned to Boston on Saturday, and during the remainder of the stay small parties ascended Black Mountain (Sandwich Dome) and North Tripyramid.

Record Notes

The party left Boston on the afternoon train, December 27, and at Tamworth found a small amount of snow in the fields, with drifts along the stone walls and more in the woods.

On the twenty-eighth an early start was made for Mount Chocorua; the temperature being 8° below zero in the valley, the ascent was made by the new path. Eleven of the party reached the timber-line and of these, four, two men and two women, reached the summit and returned over snow and ice-covered rocks, without axe, rope or creepers.

During the stay four persons made the ascent to the top of Mount Passaconaway, and twenty made the ascent of Mount Black Snout, in the Ossipee Range. Other walks were to Page's Hill, Hackett's Hill and White Pond.

Record Notes

Saturday, February 18, twenty members and friends left Boston for Woodstock, Vt.

On Sunday a number of the party visited Mount Tom.

A blizzard on Monday, all day, prevented any out-of-doors sports except a walk in the woods.

On Tuesday many of the party enjoyed a sleigh-ride in the forenoon and a five-mile walk to Peg Hill in the afternoon.

Wednesday it snowed all day; a number took a walk on snow-shoes over the hills in the morning, and went three miles to Dearborn Park, enjoying a sugaring-off in the afternoon.

On Thursday the party began to break up.

During the stay an ascent was made of Mount Ascutney; seven in the party, two being women, reached the summit.

Sixteen to eighteen walks and rides were enjoyed during the stay; there being four feet of snow on the ground, snow-shoes were used on four of the trips.

Record Notes

The snow-shoe excursion was to Jackson, N. H., this year, the party staying at the Eagle Mountain House, where they were well served and comfortably lodged by Mr. Gale, about twenty wood stoves being distributed through the house and kept going night and day.

Trips were made to Mount Double Head, Carter Notch, Mount Sable, Mount Willard, Black Mountain and Thorn Mountain, and to a logging-camp at the foot of Mount Wildcat. Two of the party on the Carter Notch excursion went over into the Pinkham Notch and attempted the ascent of Mount Washington, going as far as the Half-Way House. One of the party subsequently made the ascent from the Fabyan House, accompanied by the man in charge of the railroad station at the base of the mountain.

The excursion to Mount Willard on February 22 was particularly satisfactory. The day was brilliantly clear, and the appearance of the mountains covered with snow was in marked contrast with their familiar aspect in summer. The view of the summit of Mount Washington, as seen through the valley of the Mount Washington River on the return by railroad through the Notch, snow-covered and tinged with the rosy light of sunset, made a picture never to be forgotten.

Record Notes

The first winter excursion to Bartlett, N. H.:

During the first week the weather was very cold and dry, and the snow about three feet deep, conditions most favorable for snow-shoe tramps.

An ascent was made to the summit of Mount Willard on the twenty-second.

On the twenty-third an all-day tramp was taken up the Mount Washington River Valley.

An ascent was made to the summit of Mount Carrigan on the twenty-fourth, one woman being in the party that reached the summit.

Ascents were made of Mount Langdon on the twenty-fifth, Mount Silver-Spring on the twenty-sixth, Mount Parker on the twenty-seventh, and Bear Mountain on the twenty-eighth.

At the end of the first week came rain and heavy floods, but during the second week Table Mountain and Mount Tremont were ascended, and there were sleigh-rides to Goodrich and Jackson Falls.

Record Notes

A party of fifty left Boston on February 20, at 9 A.M., arrived at Woodstock at 3 P.M., and took up quarters at the Woodstock Inn.

On the morning of the twenty-first thirty-eight ascended Mount Tom, and in the afternoon forty-seven drove to Queechee Gulf.

On the twenty-second forty-three drove to Killington Peak, and thirty-six of this number reached the summit.

On the twenty-third short walks were taken to Baylie's and Lockwood Hills.

A trip to Mount Ascutney was arranged for the twenty-fourth, when thirty-five drove to Allen Dudley's, at the base, and twenty-five snow-shoed to the top.

A trip to Blake's Hill and a "camp-fire" in a ravine occupied the twenty-fifth.

On the twenty-sixth the Lakota Club extended an invitation to visit their camp, and thirty-nine were of the party.

There was general snow-shoeing on the twenty-seventh, and a "camp-fire" near the Harland road.

On the twenty-eighth twenty drove to Garvin Hill, returning to the hotel on foot.

March 1 was the date of the return to Boston.

Record Notes

On February 19 forty-six members and friends went to Elliott's Hotel, in Waterville, N. H., and were later joined by others until the number reached fifty-one. Owing to an almost continuous snow-storm during the week at Waterville, the various trips up the mountains were not made by large parties, and no views were obtainable from the summits. Nevertheless all the available time for snow-shoeing was well used; parties visited the summits of Tecumseh, Osceola, Black Mountain (Sandwich Dome), and North Tripyramid; and after the main party had returned home, South Tripyramid was also ascended by eight persons. The shoeing on four feet of snow was excellent, and was greatly enjoyed by all.

This was the famous excursion on which the party never saw the summits of the mountains after the day of its arrival, and then it was snowing a little. After the third or fourth day of continued storm a notice appeared on the bulletin: "The author of 'Beautiful Snow' will be hung in effigy this noon."

Record Notes

The party left Boston on Saturday, February 18, for the Iron Mountain House in Jackson, N. H., and returned February 27.

During the ten days many trips were taken, large parties making the ascent of Thorn Mountain and Mount Willard and smaller ones going to Giant Stairs, Iron Mountain, North Double Head and Carter Notch and Dome. Some thirty climbed into Tuckerman's Ravine as far as Hermit Lake, and seven on the same day reached the top of the head wall, walking up a steep incline of snow which reached far out into the ravine. Later in the week two different parties of three and two respectively, made the ascent of Mount Washington.

The sleighing parties went to Bartlett, Prospect Farm and to Dundee.

The party numbered eighty, the largest of an ever-increasing series, contrasting strongly with the first snow-shoe parties to Jackson, which numbered eight and eleven respectively.

Record Notes

The Iron Mountain House at Jackson, N. H., was visited again this year; the party numbered seventy-four members and friends.

On Sunday forenoon a number ascended Thorn Mountain, and a small party ascended Tin Mountain in the afternoon.

Monday was spent on a trip to Carter Notch.

On Tuesday an all-day trip was made to Iron Mountain.

On Wednesday Tuckerman's Ravine was visited, and a small party continued on up to Mount Washington.

Little was done on Thursday on account of a heavy snow-storm, short wood walks being in order.

On Friday a small party visited Mount Kearsarge, and the main party went to Crawford Notch, making the ascent of Mount Willard.

Saturday the main party made the ascent of Mount Kearsarge, and a few spent the day at Morrison Cottage.

Sunday no special trip was arranged.

On Monday the party returned to Boston.

During the week small parties made the ascent of Giant Stairs and Mount Double Head, while several small parties made the ascent of Mount Washington.

Record Notes

The party left Boston on the morning of Saturday, February 16, for Jackson, N. H., headquarters being at the Iron Mountain House.

On Sunday forenoon quite a number ascended Thorn Mountain, and a number enjoyed a sleigh-ride in the afternoon.

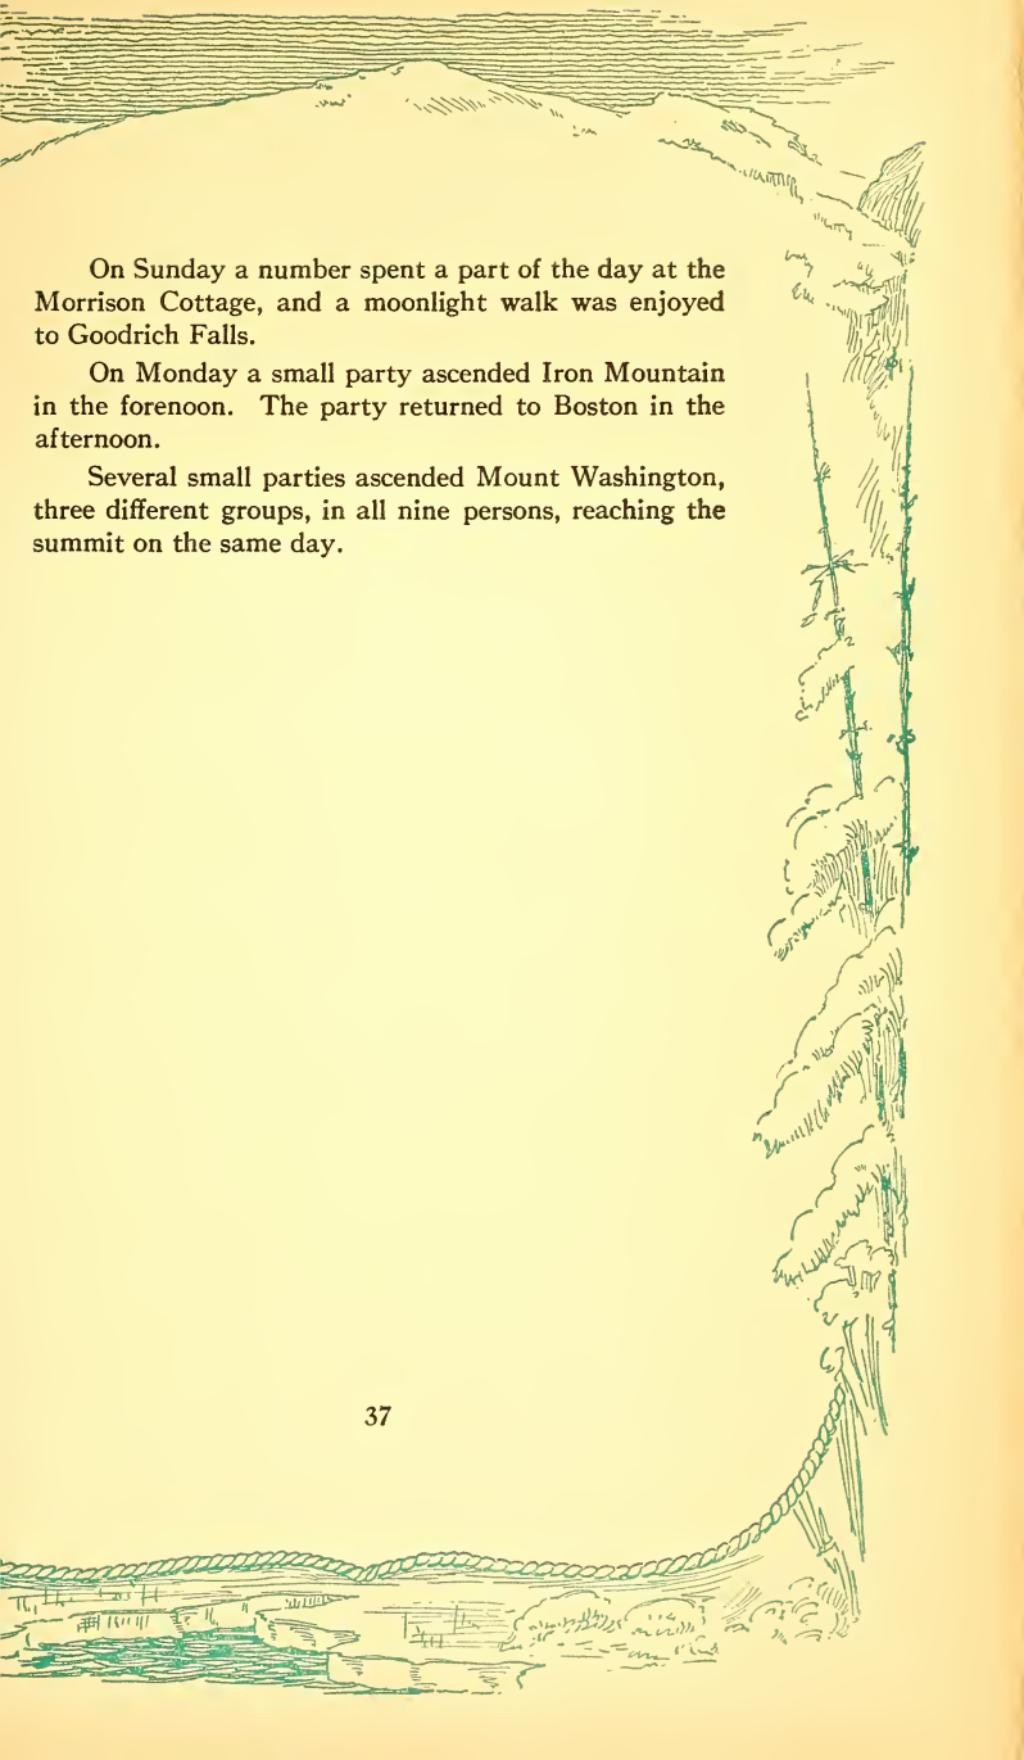

On Monday the main party spent the day on Black Mountain.

Moat Mountain was ascended on Tuesday, and Double Head Mountain on Wednesday.

On Thursday a trip was made to Carter Notch; a small party ascended Eagle Mountain.

On Friday the main trip was to Crawford Notch, with ascents of Mounts Clinton and Willard. A small party made an ascent of Mount Resolution.

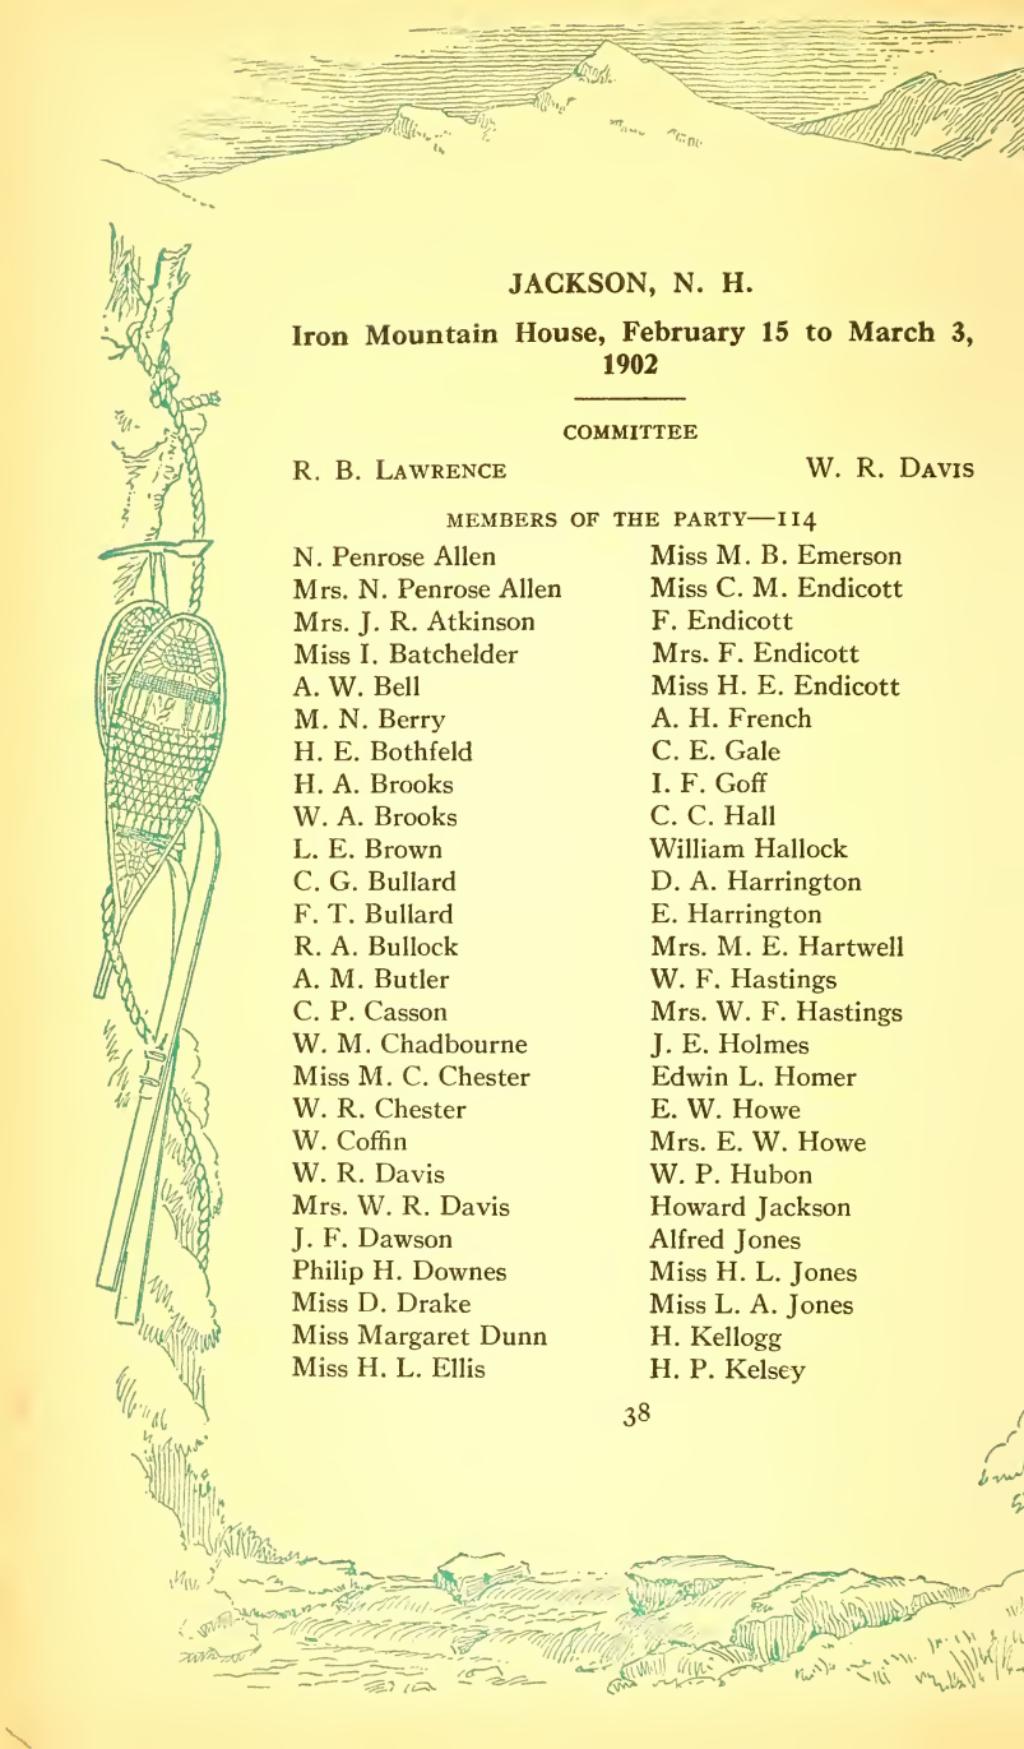

Saturday was spent on a trip to Tuckerman's Ravine, a party of three going into Huntington Ravine.

On Sunday a number spent a part of the day at the Morrison Cottage, and a moonlight walk was enjoyed to Goodrich Falls.

On Monday a small party ascended Iron Mountain in the forenoon. The party returned to Boston in the afternoon.

Several small parties ascended Mount Washington, three different groups, in all nine persons, reaching the summit on the same day.

Record Notes

The Iron Mountain House in Jackson was again the headquarters of the party, which numbered one hundred and fourteen.

Excursions were made to the summit of Thorn Mountain, to the Wigglesworth Ledges, a number of times to the Morrison Cottage, and twice to the summit of Black Mountain.

A large company visited the lumber camps in Perkins Notch, and a smaller one went into Carter Notch, but on account of getting off the trail on the Dome, failed to reach the summit.

An over-night party slept in Bald Mountain camp, its members making an ascent of North Bald Face.

One day was devoted to Iron Mountain, the return being made by a direct line over the various summits of the range.

Twenty-one climbed to the summit of Spruce Mountain, and forty-three visited Tuckerman's Ravine. Ten went into Huntington's Ravine, two ascending the head wall.

Fifty-four climbed Clinton, and two parties on different days walked up Willard.

The summit of Mount Washington was gained by a number of small parties, aggregating nine; four ascended the carriage road, three climbed up through Tuckerman's Ravine, going down to Fabyan's, while two left the Ravine House and, making the summits of the northern part of the range, also descended to Fabyan's.

Record Notes

The Iron Mountain House in Jackson, N. H., was, for the fifth time, the headquarters of the Club, one hundred and twenty-four members and friends making up the party.

Saturday—Seventy-five left Boston for Jackson.

Sunday—Thorn Mountain was climbed, as usual, in the forenoon; the snow being deeper than usual, with a hard crust on top.

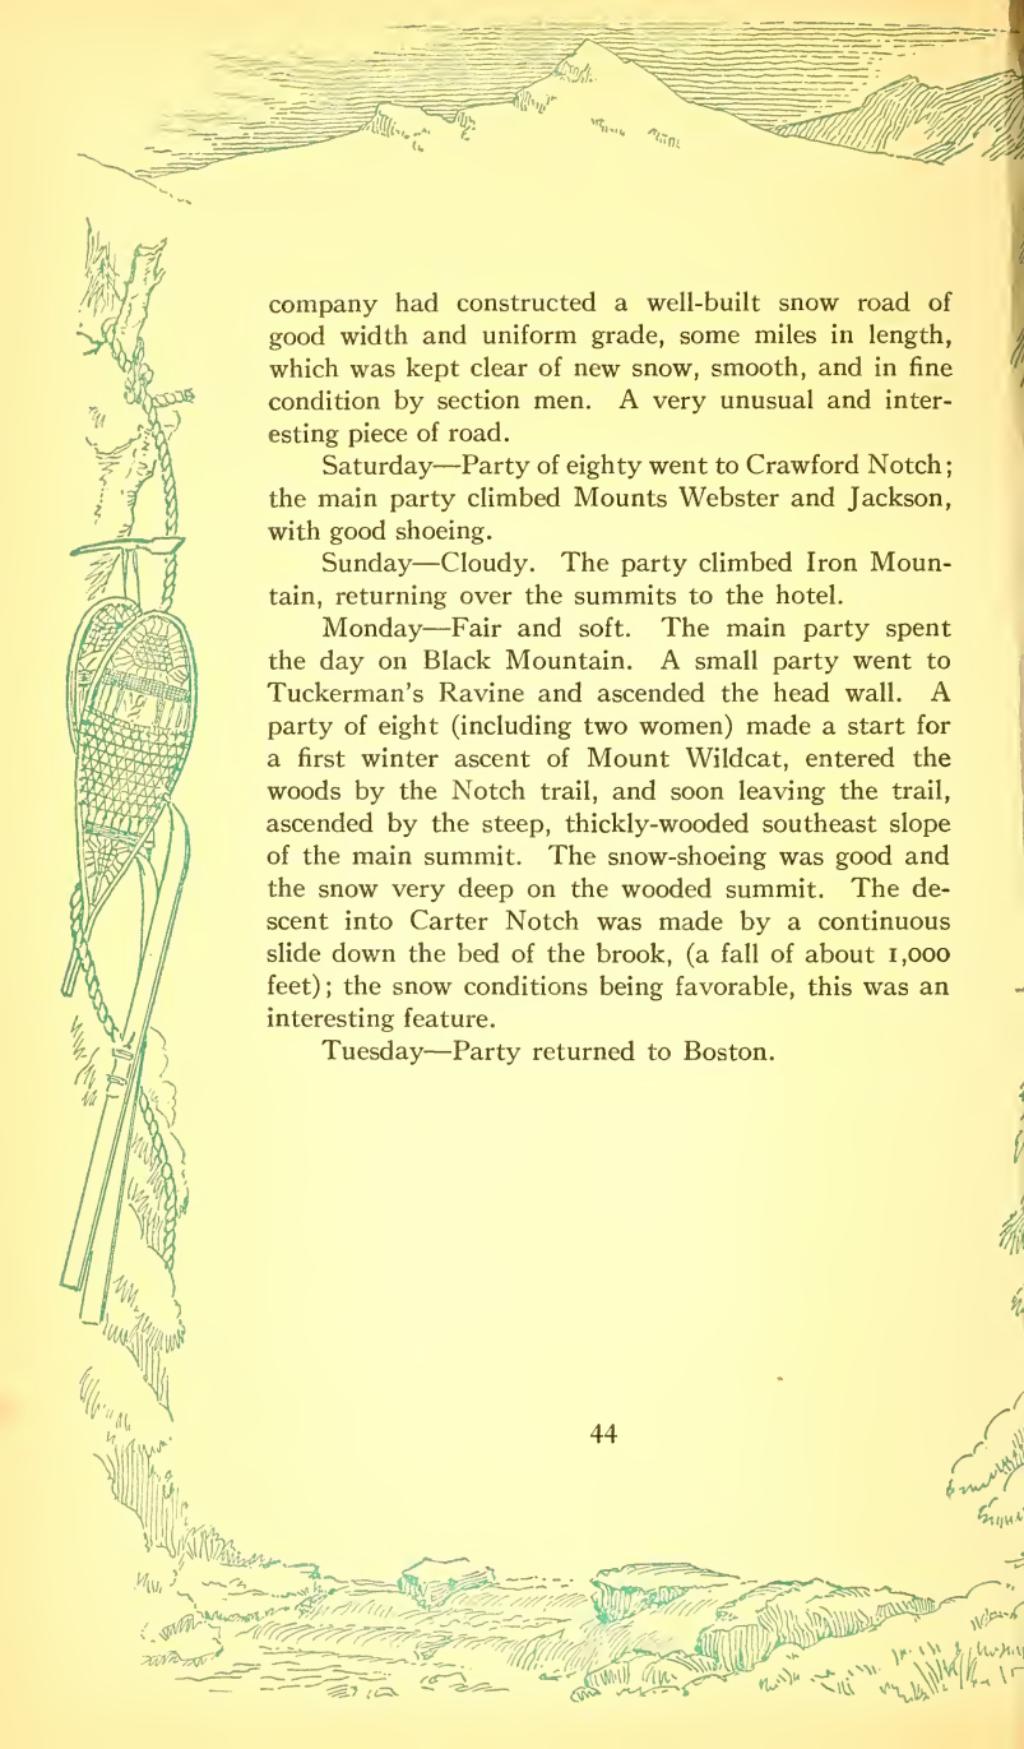

Monday—It snowed all day, and most of the party spent the day at Morrison Cottage.

Tuesday—The snow continued to a depth of about twelve inches. Small parties spent the day at Goodrich Falls and around camp-fires in the woods.

Wednesday—The weather being fair, the main party made the ascent of Mount Kearsarge; shoeing was good, but the wind was high, and it was very cold on the summit. A party of men, with Howard as guide, made an early start for Carter Notch and Dome. By frequent changes of those breaking, Carter Notch was reached by early noontime, and owing to the favorable snow conditions, the summit of the Dome was reached in good time. The weather was cold and clear, with little wind, a marked contrast to the conditions experienced by the main party on Kearsarge.

Thursday—Cloudy, 14° below zero. The day was spent in short walks by the main party. Four men made an early start for Carter Dome, following the trail made on the day previous.

Friday—Fair weather. The main party made an all-day trip to the logging-camp in Perkins' Notch. A small party made the ascent of Mount Washington via Huntington's Ravine and down by the Carriage Road. Owing to the heavy snow early in the winter, the logging company had constructed a well-built snow road of good width and uniform grade, some miles in length, which was kept clear of new snow, smooth, and in fine condition by section men. A very unusual and interesting piece of road.

Saturday—Party of eighty went to Crawford Notch; the main party climbed Mounts Webster and Jackson, with good shoeing.

Sunday—Cloudy. The party climbed Iron Mountain, returning over the summits to the hotel.

Monday—Fair and soft. The main party spent the day on Black Mountain. A small party went to Tuckerman's Ravine and ascended the head wall. A party of eight (including two women) made a start for a first winter ascent of Mount Wildcat, entered the woods by the Notch trail, and soon leaving the trail, ascended by the steep, thickly-wooded southeast slope of the main summit. The snow-shoeing was good and the snow very deep on the wooded summit. The descent into Carter Notch was made by a continuous slide down the bed of the brook, (a fall of about 1,000 feet); the snow conditions being favorable, this was an interesting feature.

Tuesday—Party returned to Boston.

Record Notes

A party of ninety-nine left Boston on Saturday, February 20, for Jackson, N. H. There were in all one hundred and nine persons on this excursion.

Sunday—Eighty ascended Thorn Mountain in the forenoon, and a few walked to Goodrich Falls in the afternoon.

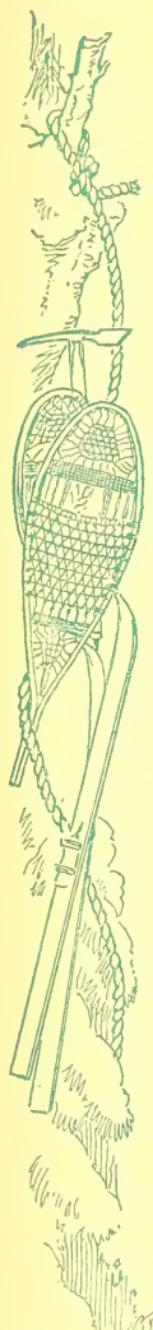

Monday—The twenty-second, being rainy, was spent about the hotel, enjoying in and out-of-doors sports, making snow statues, etc.

Tuesday—Snow. Forty-three ascended Iron Mountain, and seventeen Eagle Mountain. In the afternoon a party of fourteen men took the afternoon train for Crawford; two returned, and the remaining twelve continued on by the State Road to Ammonoosuc, where the night was spent.

Wednesday—Being cloudy, was spent by the main party at Morrison Cottage, a small party going over Tin Mountain. The Mount Washington party of twelve left Ammonoosuc about 7 A.M., followed a trail along the railroad, reaching the summit in a mist cloud, where a stop was made for lunch. The descent was made by the Carriage Road to Glen House Cottage, where sleighs were taken for Jackson.

Thursday—Cloudy and windy. Fifty-nine climbed Mount Double Head for an all-day trip.

Friday—Twenty-nine started for Mount Wildcat and Prospect Farm in a light snow-storm. This was the first winter ascent of the west peak of Mount Wildcat. A stop was made for lunch just below the summit, and on account of continued snow-squalls only a small number continued on, but these were well paid for their trouble. Just as the party finished the last steep rise and came out on a rocky ledge on the west peak, the squall passed, opening up a grand view of the eastern slope of Mount Washington, with its many rugged ravines, just across the valley. It was evident that a new view-point of much interest had been discovered.

Saturday—Was spent in Crawford Notch, forty-nine persons going up on the train. Fine weather, thermometer 18° below zero in the morning; not so much snow as usual, but clear, with much wind. Twenty-six went to the summit of Mount Clinton, and of these, four continued on as far as the base of the cone of Mount Pleasant. Four went up Mount Avalon and seventeen up Mount Willard.

Sunday—Rain and snow. Short walks were taken by main party, and a small party went up the Rocky Branch for a camp-fire lunch.

Monday—Party returned to Boston.

Record Notes

The Gorham party numbered forty-two, with headquarters at the Mount Madison House.

The first day trip was to Pine Mountain, and one day was spent at the Barrett Camp.

On the twenty-fourth the main party went by sleighs to the Glen, and walked up Nineteen-Mile Brook to the Club Camp in Carter Notch. Three of the party walked up the Carriage Road to the Half-Way House, and returning, stopped over night at Glen House Cottage, for the purpose of ascending Mount Washington on the morrow.

On the twenty-fifth the main party took the train for Appalachia Station, with Mount Madison Spring Hut as the goal. The majority of the party reached Durand Ridge, but on account of the cold, high wind and ice-covered rocks, only eight of the party, including one woman, reached the hut.

The Mount Washington party awoke at Glen Cottage with the thermometer 16° above zero in their rooms, and 16° below zero outside. An early start was made under favorable conditions, following the broken trail up the Carriage Road to the Half-Way House, which was reached by 9 A.M., where creepers were put on and a most enjoyable tramp continued over the unbroken wind-packed snow of the long northern slope, just above the head-wall of the Great Gulf. The summit was reached about noon, where everything was found coated with snow and frost-work, while the frost feathers on the low telegraph poles were of unusual dimensions, being fully three feet in length, of dull ivory color, and in outline very perfectly suggesting the "Winged Victory." After lunch, under favorable weather conditions, the tramp was continued past Mount Clay, along the eastern slope of Mount Jefferson and past Mounts Adams and Madison, to the head of Snider's Brook, which was reached at 5, P.M., where creepers were changed for snow-shoes; continuing down the brook and out to the Ravine House, which was reached about 9 P.M. After a short rest a sleigh was taken for the Mount Madison House. More perfect conditions in every way for such a trip it would be hard to expect again.

Trips were also taken during the week to Mount Surprise and to the Lookout on the slope of Mount Hayes.

Late in the week a party of four men drove to the Glen House and started for Tuckerman's Ravine by way of the Carriage Road and the Raymond Path, but a snow-storm prevented their getting beyond Hermit Lake; the return was made by the path out by Crystal Cascades. The same day another small party of men continued on up the Carriage Road to the Half-Way House, where they turned back on account of bad weather. Thermometer was 23° below zero when the parties left the hotel in the morning.

During the week another party of three men took a trip into the Great Gulf and ascended the head-wall to the summit of Mount Washington. An account of this trip will be found in Appalachia, Vol. 2, page 7.

Record Notes

The party numbered eighty-four members and friends.

Sunday—The usual ascent of Thorn Mountain was made in the forenoon; on account of prevailing snow-squalls the leaders, on the way down, lost their bearings until the east slope of Middle Mountain was reached, the hotel not being reached until a late dinner hour. In the afternoon a party climbed Duck's Head from the north side, enjoying slides on the way down the south side.

Monday—Fifty-six participated in a camp-fire lunch on Iron Mountain, the return being made over the summits, and some not reaching the hotel until early evening.

Tuesday—Several trips by small parties to nearby points.

Wednesday—Thirty-nine started for the west peak of Mount Wildcat; some returned by same trail, the remainder going on over to the eastern peak or summit, then down into Carter Notch. Some trouble was found in keeping to the trail out, and it being dark when the clearing was reached, additional difficulty was experienced on account of the hard crust under foot and the prevailing high wind obscuring the trail with drifting snow.

Thursday—Thirty-five spent the day on Black Mountain enjoying a camp-fire lunch.

Friday—Twenty-four made the first winter ascent, by the Section, of Mounts Stanton-Pickering.

Saturday—Sixteen made the ascent of Moat Mountain and experienced difficulties with the crust over the scrub growth on the upper slope. Another party made the ascent of Mount Double Head.

During the week a party of four men started for Mount Washington through the Gulf of Slides, but failed to reach the summit.

Another party of two men reached the summit, going down and out to Crawford.

Record Notes

On Saturday, January 20, 1906, a party of twenty-eight members and friends of the Snow-shoe Section left Boston at 10 A.M., for Gorham, N. H. They were later joined by others, making the total number in the party thirty-seven. The headquarters for the week were at the Mount Madison House.

On Sunday, the twenty-first, a drive was taken to Shelborn, while a party of five drove to Nineteen Mile Brook. Three snow-shoed to Carter Notch Camp and climbed Mount Wildcat. Party went to Point Lookout on Mount Hayes in the afternoon.

On Monday, the twenty-second, four of the party went to Appalachia Station, from there climbing to the Madison Club Hut, where they spent the night. Mount Adams was ascended, and the return was made to Glen Cottage via the Osgood trail. The main party spent the day at Barrett's Camp.

Tuesday, the twenty-third, twenty-two drove to Glen House Cottage, walked up the Carriage Road to the Half-Way House and returned.

On Wednesday, the twenty-fourth, fourteen went to Stevens' Crag, south of Gorham. A trip was made to Berlin in the afternoon.

Blanchard's Lumber Camp, in the town of Success, was visited on Thursday, the twenty-fifth. A party of twenty-two took the drive of thirteen miles, and on reaching the camp enjoyed a regular lumberman's dinner.

Friday, the twenty-sixth, ten of the party proceeded to Appalachia Station. From there they climbed to the Club Hut, eight ascending by way of the head-wall of King's Ravine, and two by way of Durand Ridge, all returning via Durand Ridge on ice-creepers.

On Saturday the party returned to Boston.

Record Notes

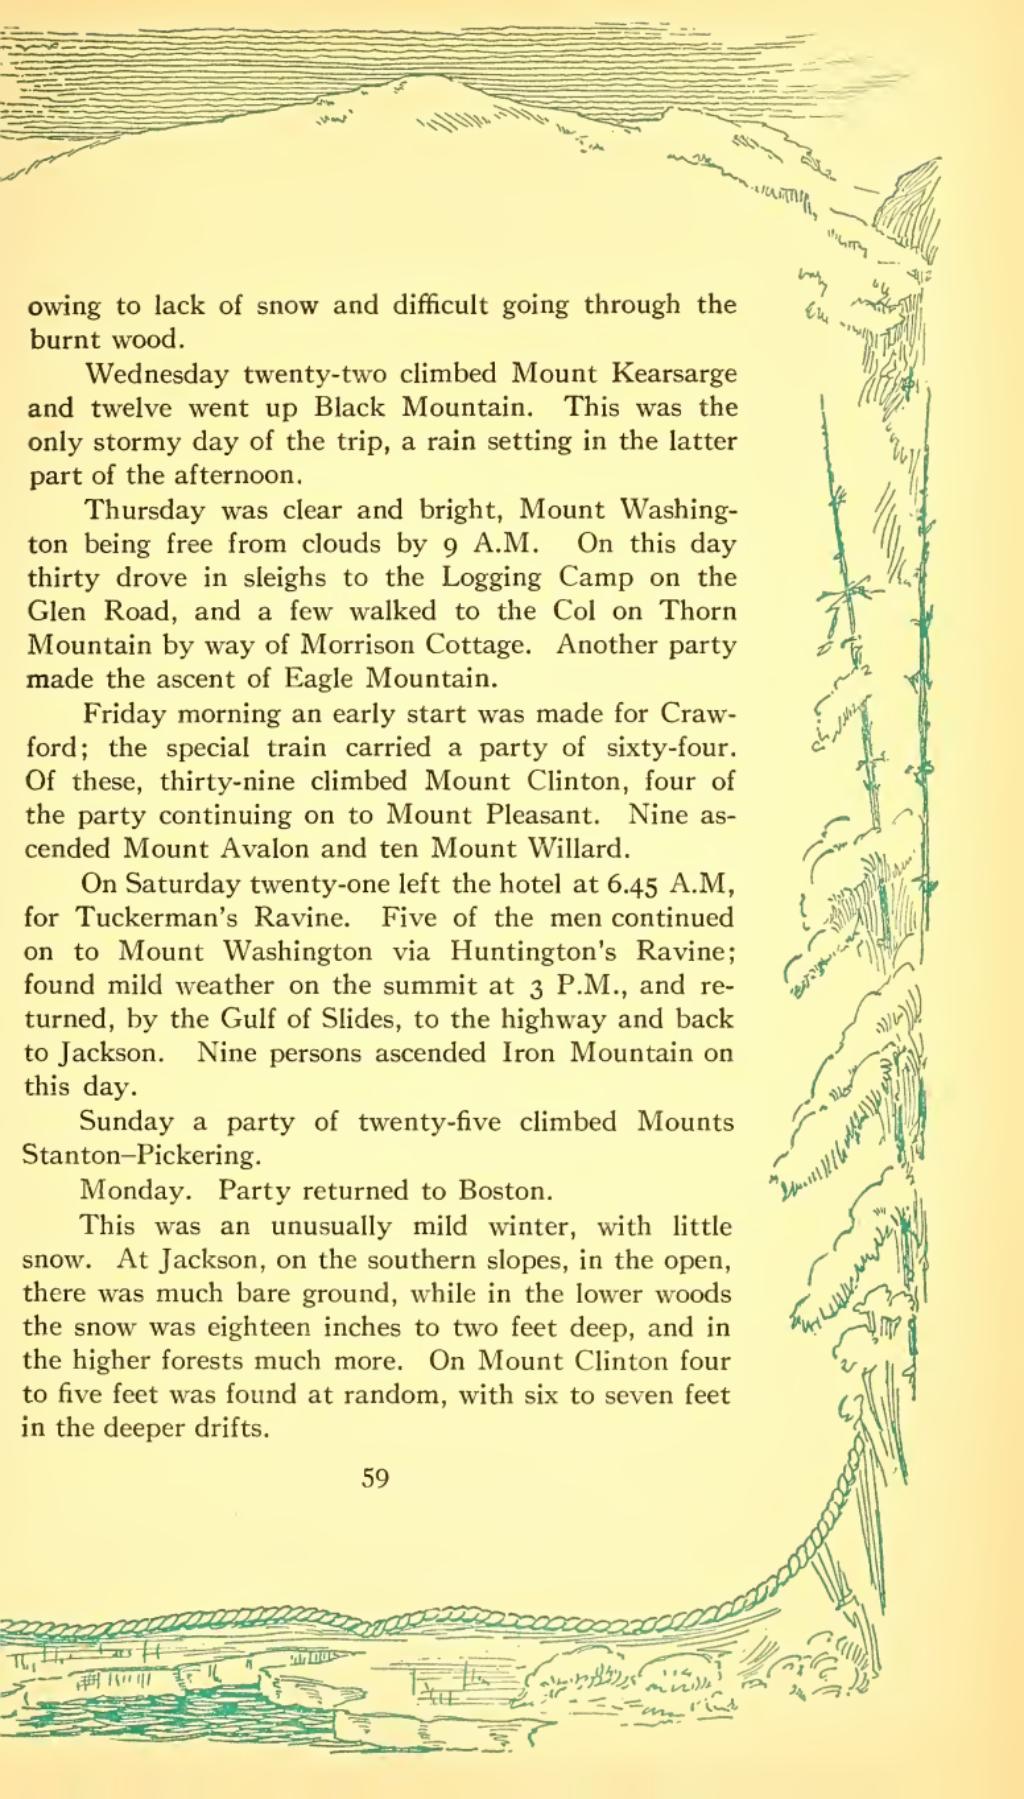

Members of the Snow-shoe Section and friends, eighty-six persons in all, visited the Iron Mountain House at Jackson, N. H., for ten days of snow-shoeing.

On Saturday, the seventeenth, forty-four persons left the North Station, Boston, at 8.30 A.M., in special car, arriving at Glen at 2 P.M., where sleighs were taken for Jackson.

On Sunday forty-one persons climbed Thorn Mountain.

Monday thirty-five ascended Double Head.

Tuesday twenty-seven went into Carter Notch for a day's trip, sleighs being taken as far as Mr. Jonathan Davis' house. The party lunched at Carter Notch Camp. Six others made up a party for Carter Dome, by the southeast slope, but failed to reach the summit, owing to lack of snow and difficult going through the burnt wood.

Wednesday twenty-two climbed Mount Kearsarge and twelve went up Black Mountain. This was the only stormy day of the trip, a rain setting in the latter part of the afternoon.

Thursday was clear and bright, Mount Washington being free from clouds by 9 A.M. On this day thirty drove in sleighs to the Logging Camp on the Glen Road, and a few walked to the Col on Thorn Mountain by way of Morrison Cottage. Another party made the ascent of Eagle Mountain.

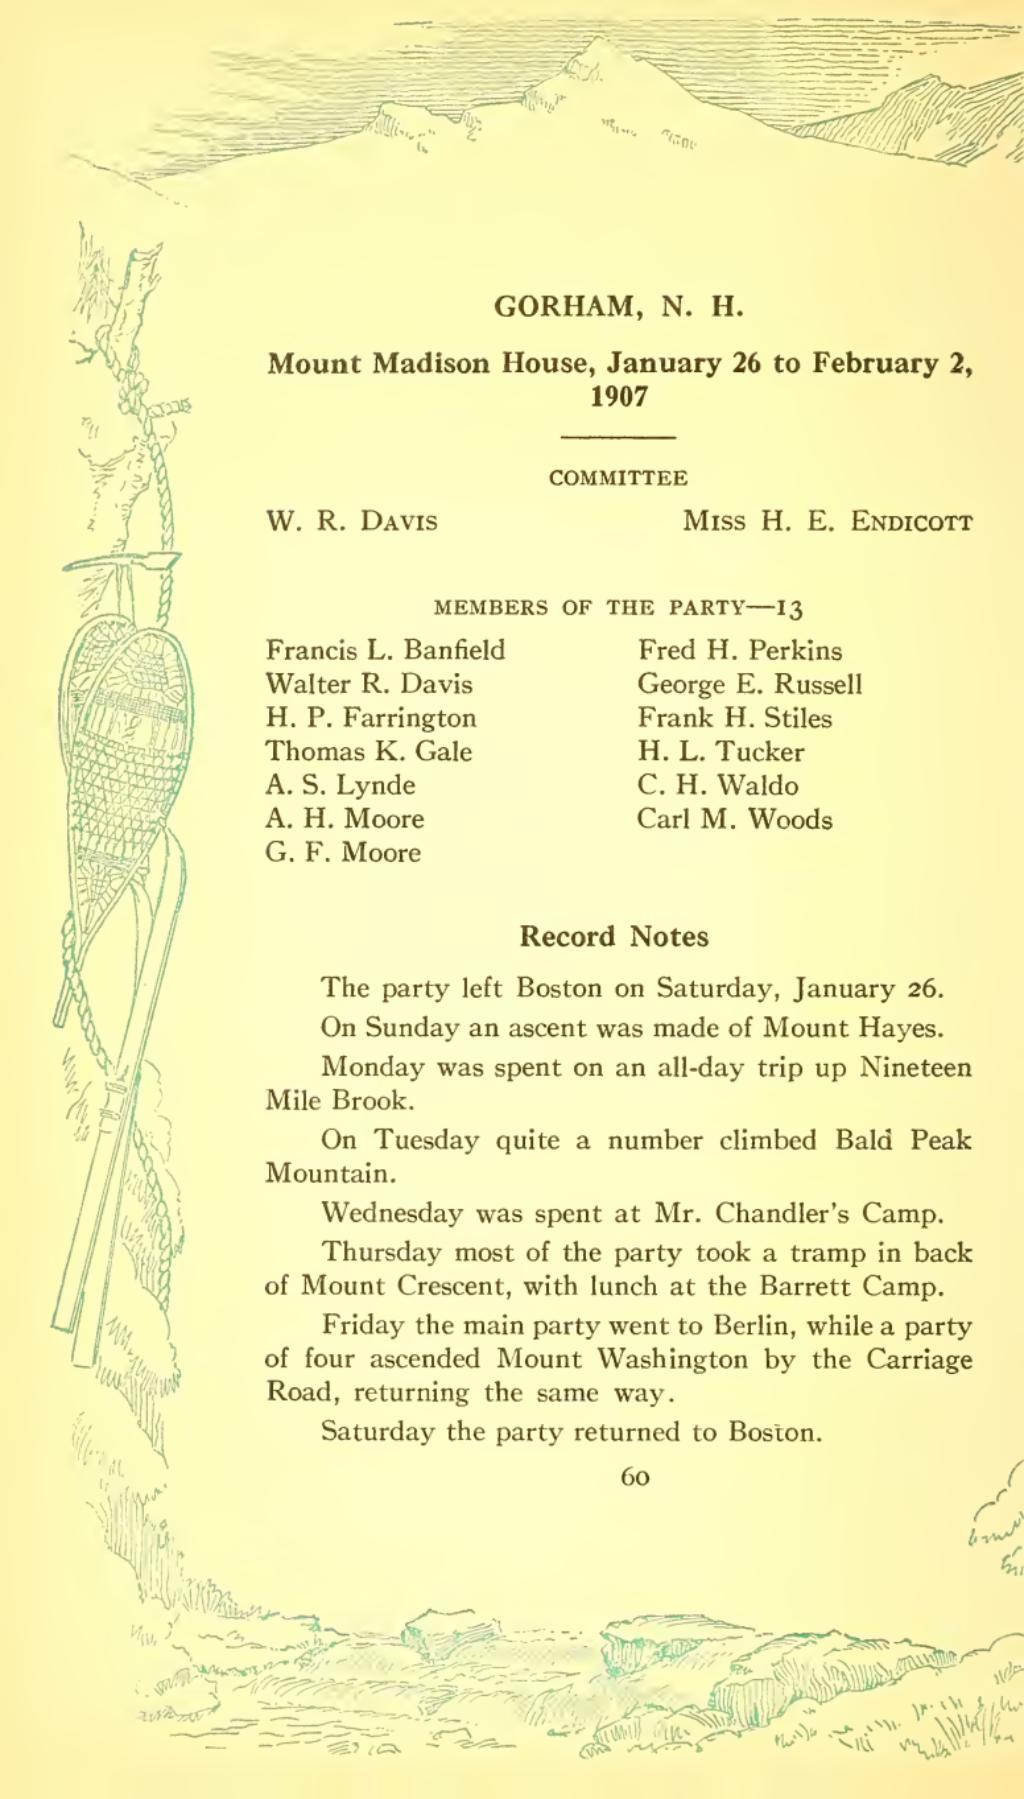

Friday morning an early start was made for Crawford; the special train carried a party of sixty-four. Of these, thirty-nine climbed Mount Clinton, four of the party continuing on to Mount Pleasant. Nine ascended Mount Avalon and ten Mount Willard.

On Saturday twenty-one left the hotel at 6.45 A.M., for Tuckerman's Ravine. Five of the men continued on to Mount Washington via Huntington's Ravine; found mild weather on the summit at 3 P.M., and returned, by the Gulf of Slides, to the highway and back to Jackson. Nine persons ascended Iron Mountain on this day.

Sunday a party of twenty-five climbed Mounts Stanton-Pickering.

Monday. Party returned to Boston.

This was an unusually mild winter, with little snow. At Jackson, on the southern slopes, in the open, there was much bare ground, while in the lower woods the snow was eighteen inches to two feet deep, and in the higher forests much more. On Mount Clinton four to five feet was found at random, with six to seven feet in the deeper drifts.

Record Notes

One hundred and four members and friends left Boston, February 16, for that Mecca of pleasant memories, the Iron Mountain House at Jackson.

The next day, following what has become an established custom, a party of fifty climbed Thorn Mountain, starting in fair weather, but encountering a snow-storm later.

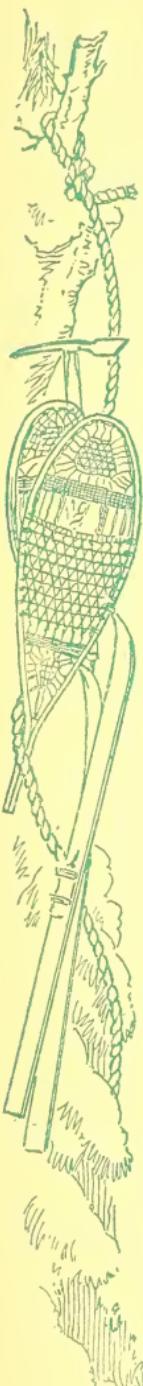

Monday was a perfect winter day, and Moat was the objective point. Another party went to picnic in the snow on Duck's Head.

Tuesday was cloudy, but a trip was made to Black Mountain, the party returning home by the long pasture on the western slope. No views were had of Washington, but there were beautiful glimpses of Double Head through the storm.

Wednesday a party ascended Wildcat, some of the members keeping on down the farther side to Glen Cottage, others going to Prospect Farm.

Thursday was devoted to Iron Mountain.

Friday, Washington's Birthday, was intensely cold, with a bitter wind sweeping from the bare and icy summits through Crawford Notch, where we went by special train, to insure an appetite for the annual banquet in the evening. This was the coldest day experienced by members on any of the winter excursions, the thermometer keeping around zero all day, with a sharp, cutting wind driving particles of snow in all directions. All members of the party returned to the lower level by early afternoon. Three parties set out from the Notch station and entered the woods, beautiful in their immaculate winter garb, the snow-shoes making the first breaks on the white surface, except where a fox or rabbit or a deer had left the story of its wanderings. Clinton, Willard and Avalon were the peaks selected, and all were successful trips, the Avalon climb especially, for the dozen men and women who essayed that pretty little mountain found themselves, after a long and somewhat arduous scramble up the very steep and slippery course of a brook that comes down a deep and narrow ravine, on the bleak summit of Mount Field. The day was bright, with an intensely blue sky, but very cold, and the strong, biting wind blew the dry snow from the trees in such clouds that we traveled as in a snow-storm, the flying flakes at times shutting out the views. The winter forest, vested with the charm and mystery of the white silence, was never more beautiful as our sinuous course wound in and out among the trees. A few moments on the summit were all sufficient, and we were only too glad to seek the shelter of a thicket of snow-laden spruce, where we discussed our frozen sandwiches and doughnuts. The thermometer was below zero all day.

Saturday Kearsarge, Middle and Tin were climbed, and Spruce, Eagle, Iron and Thorn on Sunday. Through the week many shorter walks and sleigh-rides were enjoyed.

The party returned to Boston, Monday, February 25, or at least made the attempt so to do; but a snow-plough disabled at West Ossipee, causing a delay of several hours, the train reached Boston at 3.30 A.M., on Tuesday.

Thirty-five participated in the January trip to Lake Placid in the Adirondacks, January 10 to 18. The delightfully situated and appointed Lake Placid Club was the headquarters of the party, and officers and members of that organization vied with each other in their hospitality.

Soon after arriving, Saturday morning, many members repaired to the toboggan slide, spending the morning there, while in the afternoon all participated in a scramble up Cobble Hill.

Short walks about the property and a camp-fire at Echo Pond in the evening occupied Sunday.

Monday being snowy, the whole party drove to John Brown's grave, and in the afternoon climbed Mount Whitney.

On Tuesday four parties were out. Two to Mount Marcy, one to Mount Jo, near Adirondack Lodge, and a driving party. Four members of the first two parties, Miss Banfield and Messrs. C. A. Newhall, D. A. Harrington and L. A. Wells, reached the summit of Marcy in the late afternoon, in spite of a severe wind and temperature 7 to 10 degrees below zero, the balance of the party not proceeding above tree line, some five hundred feet below the summit. Only one other winter ascent of Mount Marcy is on record.

Wednesday trips were made about Mirror Lake and Club grounds, as snow fell quite continuously, there being by this time about eighteen inches on the level. The snow continuing on Thursday, a drive and camp-fire in Wilmington Notch was in order.

Friday an early but ineffectual start was made for Whiteface from Wilmington Road, but blinding snow and unfamiliarity with the region made a direct route difficult, the result being the inadvertent ascent of Cold Spring Mountain, a detached foot-hill.

The party left Lake Placid Club Friday evening, reaching Boston Saturday afternoon. Messrs Harland A. Perkins and Charles A. Newhall were in charge of the party.

The February snow-shoe excursion, as in the past few years, was pleasantly spent at the Iron Mountain House, Jackson, N. H., the main party of about fifty going in special cars on the morning of February 15, and many others joining during the week, so that the total attendance was eighty-one. This number was less than last year, but filled the house comfortably, and the over-crowding, which has sometimes been objectionable, was avoided.

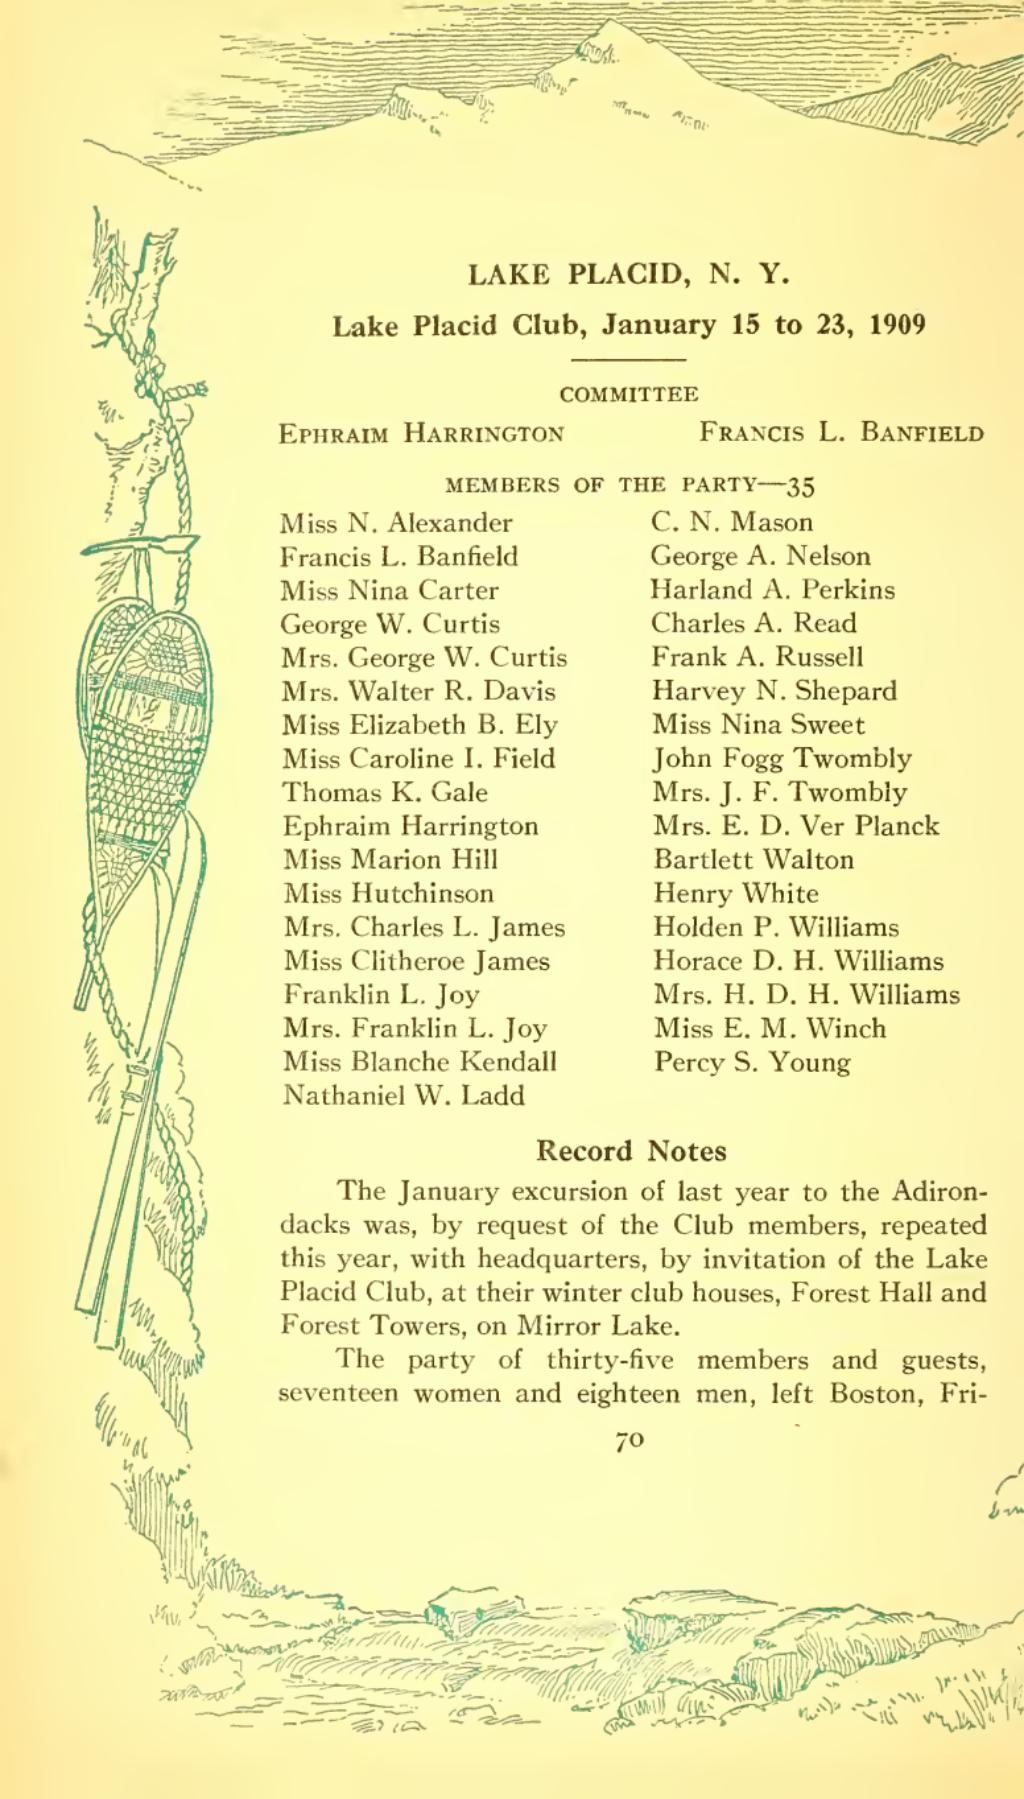

The arrival at Glen Station was in the midst of a driving rain, with the roads deep and almost impassable with slush. Cooler weather and moderate snow-falls remedied this difficulty, and the balance of the week saw superb shoeing on from fifteen to eighteen inches of solid snow.

The program for the week was as follows: Sunday, Thorn Mountain and Morrison Cottage; Monday, Double Head with exciting slides down the south peak; Tuesday, a drive to Glen Ellis Falls and a climb to the Boulder; Wednesday, Iron Mountain from Hayes' Farm, returning via the Ridge; Thursday, train to Bemis and the ascent of Mount Crawford, a comparatively new but interesting peak for winter parties; Friday, Wildcat from the south, returning via Carter Notch, and a camp party to Prospect Farm and Hall's Ledge; Saturday, the twenty-second, a special train through the Notch to Crawford, with ascents of Mounts Clinton, Avalon and Willard; Sunday, the coldest day, with a morning temperature of 15° below, Tuckerman's Ravine. Two small parties during the week made the ascent of Mount Washington, one by the Carriage Road and the other through Tuckerman's Ravine. The evening of Washington's Birthday was given over to the annual banquet tendered to the Club by the hotel management, followed by dancing, to the music of the Intervale Symphony Orchestra.

The party returned to Boston Monday afternoon. Messrs. Harland A. Perkins and Ephraim Harrington were in charge.

Record Notes

The January excursion of last year to the Adirondacks was, by request of the Club members, repeated this year, with headquarters, by invitation of the Lake Placid Club, at their winter club houses, Forest Hall and Forest Towers, on Mirror Lake.

The party of thirty-five members and guests, seventeen women and eighteen men, left Boston, Friday afternoon, January 15, arriving at the club house Saturday morning in time for breakfast. The thermometer registered 18 degrees below zero when the party arrived.

Saturday afternoon most of the party climbed Mount Whitney (Pulpit Mt.); the day was clear, with the thermometer near zero, and fine views were obtained, especially of the snow-white summit of Mount Whiteface to the north.

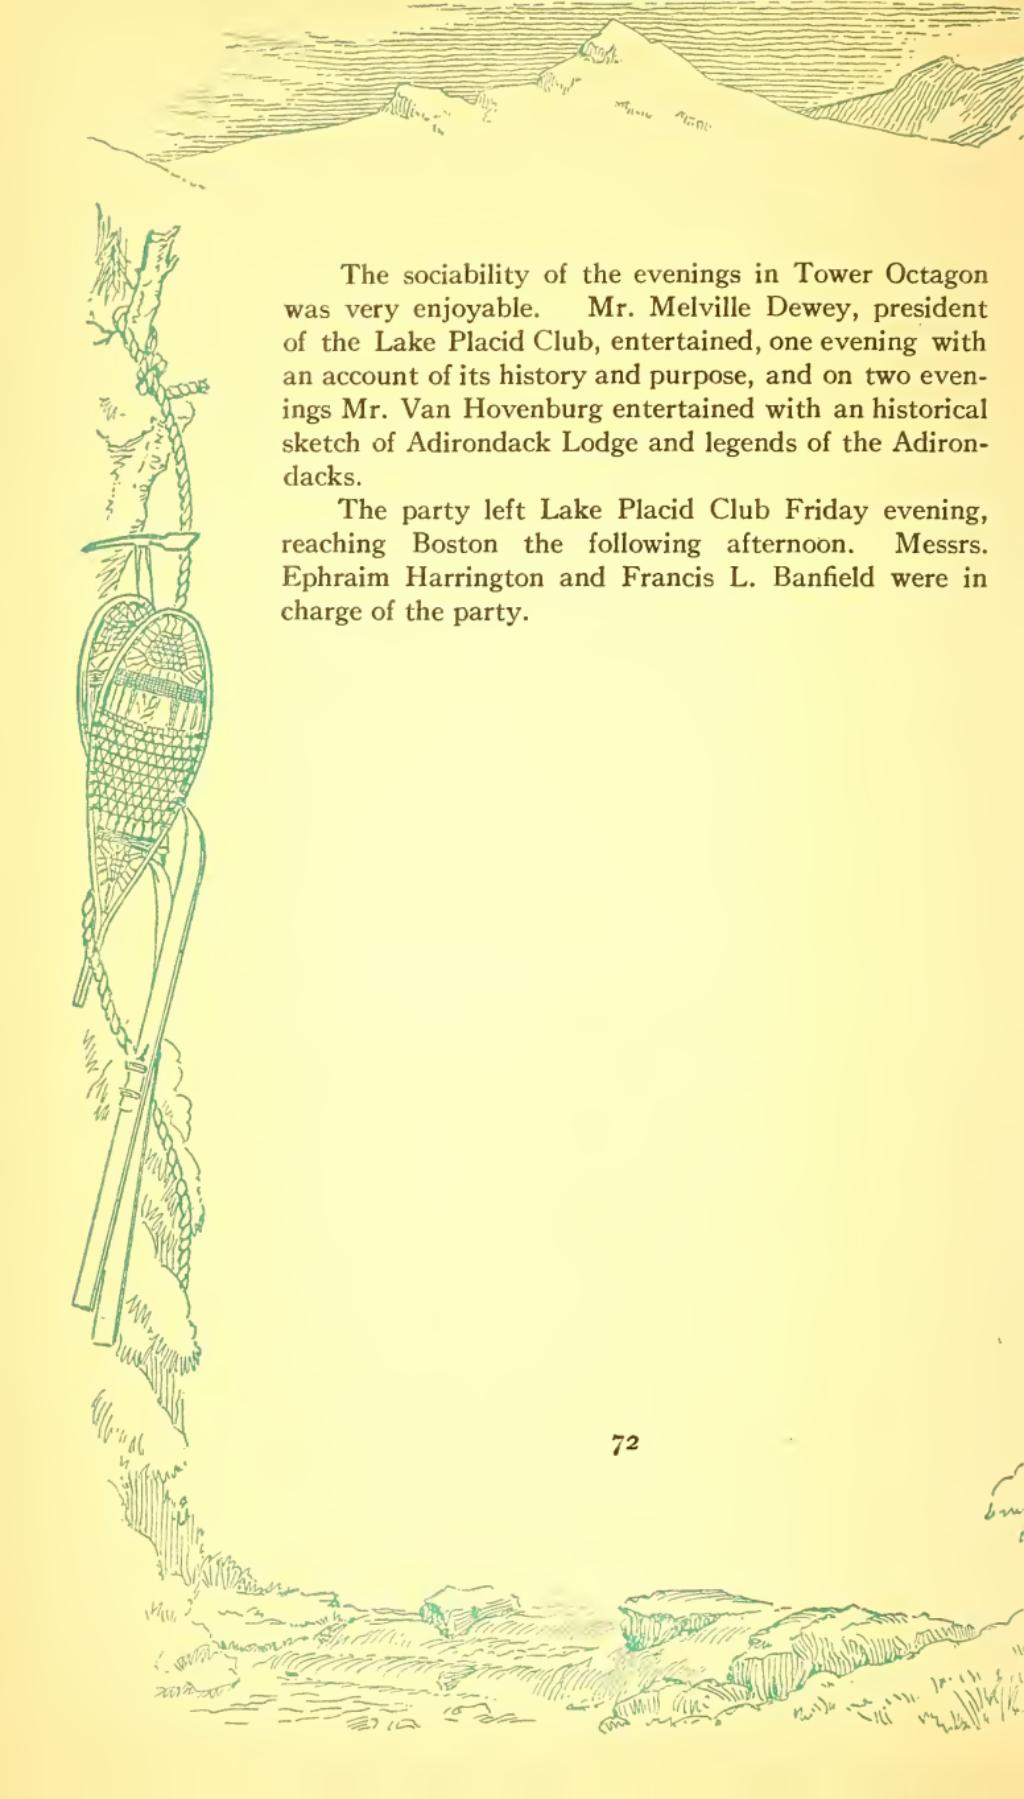

Sunday and Monday, the weather conditions being uncertain, with occasional snow, the time was given over to sleigh-rides, with a tramp through the woods and a camp-fire lunch.

On Tuesday a party of eleven made an early start for Mount Whiteface, driving over the lake to the foot of the mountain, and all but one reached the summit. Left the sleigh at 8.40 A.M., and arrived at the summit at 1.30 P.M. A high wind prevailing at the time, only a short stop was made on the summit, the party returning to below the tree line for lunch. Left lunch place at 2 P.M., reached the lake at 4.30 and the club house at 5.30 in a snow-storm.

Wednesday being clear but windy, was given over to the toboggan slide and sleigh-rides.

Thursday a party of twelve made an early start for Mount Marcy and reached the summit; but owing to heavy mist and occasional showers, no view was possible. The path is, except at a few points, well defined and of a gradual rising grade until the tree-line is reached; the cone, being of bare rock, presents the usual varying conditions.

Another party made the trip to Mount Joe, returning in the early afternoon.

The sociability of the evenings in Tower Octagon was very enjoyable. Mr. Melville Dewey, president of the Lake Placid Club, entertained, one evening with an account of its history and purpose, and on two evenings Mr. Van Hovenburg entertained with an historical sketch of Adirondack Lodge and legends of the Adirondacks.

The party left Lake Placid Club Friday evening, reaching Boston the following afternoon. Messrs. Ephraim Harrington and Francis L. Banfield were in charge of the party.

A party of twenty-five left Boston Friday afternoon, January 29, via the Boston and Albany Railroad, for Adams, Mass., stopping at "The Barrett," near the station.

On Saturday the ascent of Mount Greylock was made, under the guidance of Mr. George A. Bauer, superintendent of Greylock Reservation, following the Harbor Trail and reaching the summit about noon, the leaders making the trip in less than three hours. The descent was made by way of the Bellows Pipe Trail.

On Sunday a trip was made by electric car and sleigh to Bacon's Farm near the foot of The Hopper. A few returned to the hotel, while the remainder enjoyed an easy climb up the side of The Hopper to Rocky Ledge, where fine views of the surrounding peaks were obtained. From this point the party soon reached the Pittsfield Trail, which was followed to its junction with the Harbor Trail near the summit. The return to Adams was made via the Harbor Trail.

On Monday a small party went by electric car to Cheshire Harbor, and had a good walk over the top of Saddle Ball, thence down over Jones' Nose and Round's Rock to Cheshire. The day was clear, temperature 15° below zero, with fine views extending from the Catskills and Adirondacks on the west to Monadnock and Wachusett on the east.

The main party returned to Boston, Tuesday morning, over the Boston and Albany Railroad via Pittsfield. Mr. D. A. Harrington was in charge of the party.

Record Notes

The February snow-shoe excursion was to Jackson, N. H., with headquarters at the Iron Mountain House, from Saturday, February 20, to Monday, March 1. Eighty club members and friends left Boston, Saturday morning, on special cars attached to the regular train, and were joined by others, making a total of one hundred and three over Sunday and Monday.

Monday was very favorable for the annual trip to Crawford Notch, one hundred persons participating. The main party made the ascent of Mount Clinton, while small parties ascended Mount Avalon, Mount Willard, and the Rosebrook Range, a few remaining on the lower level. Snow and frost-work covered the trees on the higher elevations; the weather was clear and cool, and fine views were possible in all directions.

During the week ascents were made of the following mountains: Iron, Thorn, Double Head, Stanton-Pickering, Black and Eagle, also Tuckerman's Ravine.

All variations of weather, with the exception of a snow-storm, were experienced during the week, but rain occurred only on Wednesday. One incident of this excursion worth recording was the unusual snow conditions. With the snow from three to six feet deep in the woods and on the mountain sides, snow-shoes were necessary only as an incidental part of the outfit. This was due to the number of layers of thick crust interlaid with a few inches of soft snow. Some persons made the ascent of Mount Clinton without snow-shoes, but used them on the way down. Snow-shoes were not needed at any time on the trips to Mounts Stanton-Pickering or Double Head.

Owing to the fact that the holiday came early in the week, the size of the party was materially reduced towards the end of the stay, only twenty-one persons returning to Boston at the schedule time, Monday afternoon.

Record Notes

The annual excursion of the Snow-shoe Section for January this year was from the fifteenth to the twenty-fourth inclusive. The party was very pleasantly and comfortably situated at the Mount Madison House, Gorham, N. H. The weather conditions proved quite favorable, with one or two exceptions, storming a little Tuesday and Friday. Ascents were made of Mounts Hayes, Moriah, Crescent and Washington. A trip to the Great Gulf was included, and visits to the Glen Ellis Falls and Crystal Cascade. An all-day trip was made to Mr. Chandler's Camp near Mount Success, where the party partook of an excellent dinner. The party was also treated to a genuine lumber-camp dinner the day of the trip to Mount Crescent.

Record Notes

The headquarters for the February snow-shoe excursion of the Club was at the Iron Mountain House, Jackson, N. H., February 19 to 28. Owing to the increasing size of the party it was found desirable to provide additional accommodations at Gray's Inn. The party left Boston on the morning of the nineteenth, occupying four special cars which ran as a second section of the regular train. Favorable snow conditions, depth three to seven feet, with easy breaking out of trails, was enjoyed this year, and with the exception of two days, the weather conditions were satisfactory.

Sunday no official trip was arranged, but Thorn Mountain was ascended by quite a number in the forenoon. A small party ascended Mount Kearsarge.

Monday, being rainy, only the more enthusiastic took short trips to various points.

Tuesday the Crawford Notch trip was enjoyed under fair weather conditions, one hundred and six leaving Glen Station on special train. The main party ascended Mount Clinton, but the unusual depth of snow proved an added difficulty in keeping to the blazed trail, and only a few reached the northern summit; a larger number were satisfied with the south summit, as even near views were not possible owing to the prevailing thick haze. Another party took the trail for Mount Field, a few ascended Mount Willard, and the remainder stayed on the lower level. The return was made an hour earlier than usual, giving ample time for the enjoyment of the anniversary dinner and a social evening in the hotel parlors.

Wednesday fifty took part in the usual camp-fire lunch on Black Mountain, thirty-five walking back cross-country in the late afternoon.

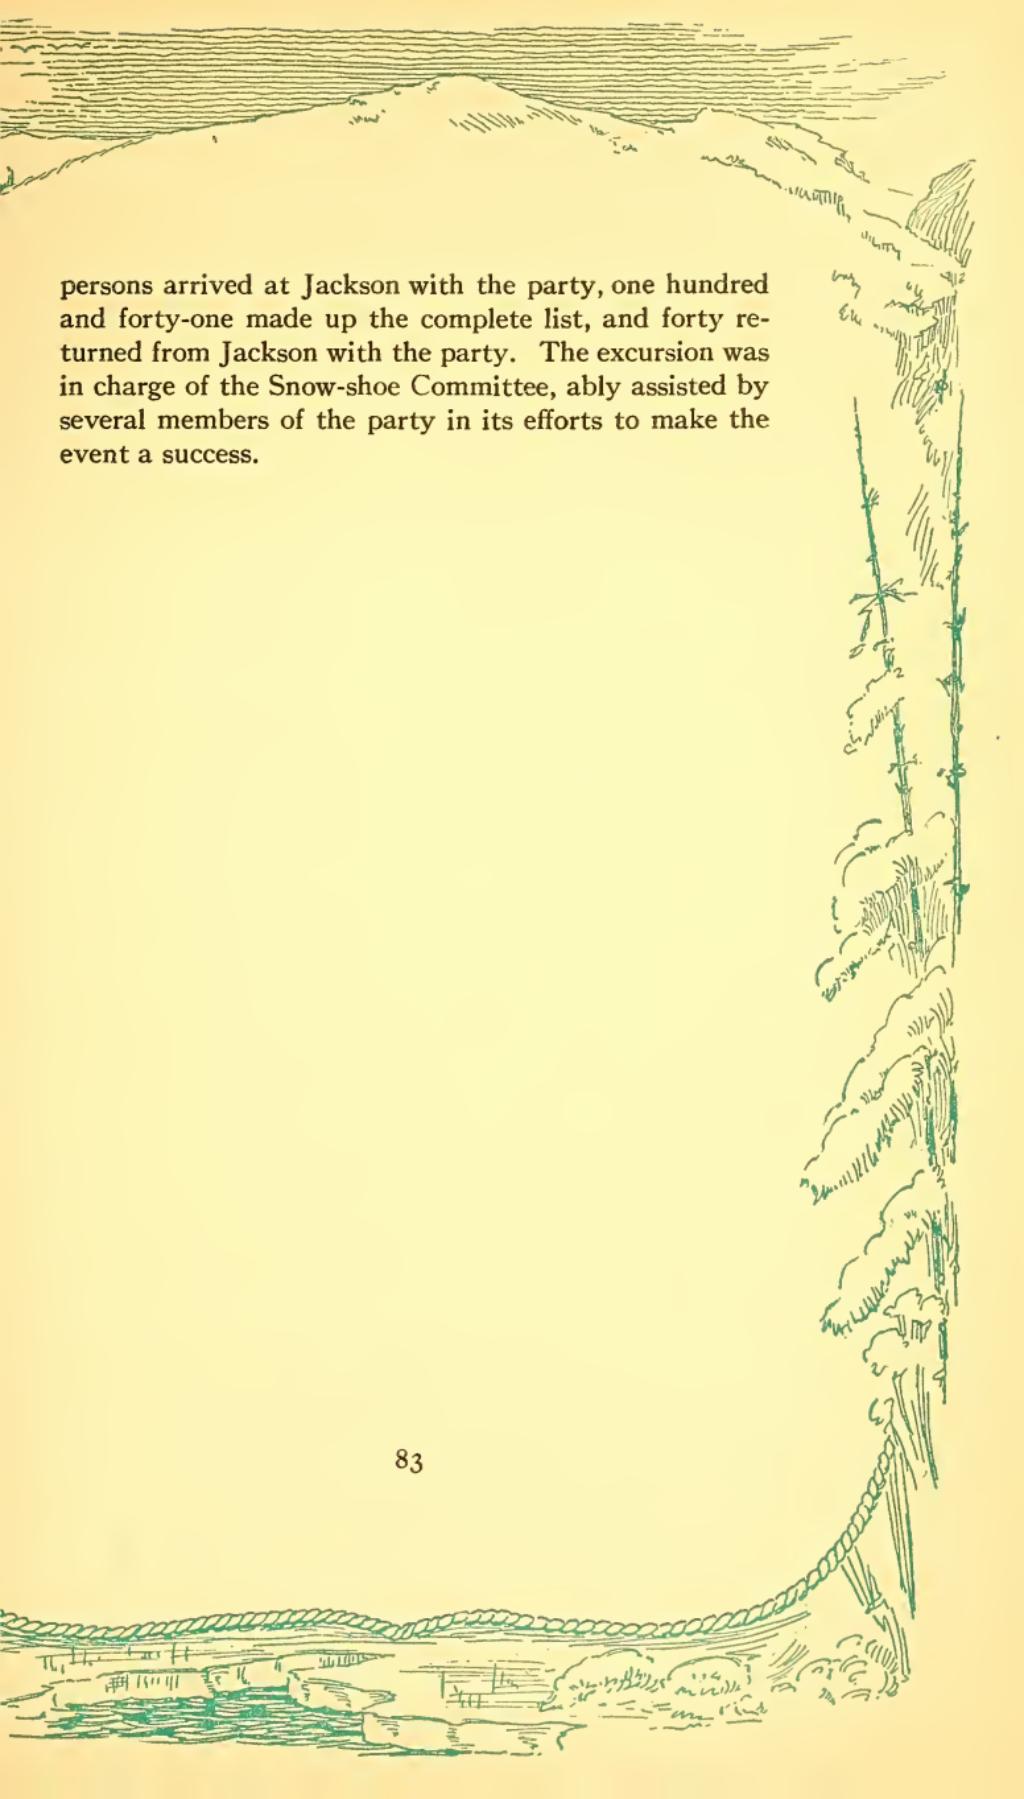

Thursday forty-two made an early start for Tuckerman's Ravine. The unbroken road necessitated leaving the sleighs three miles south of the usual point; most of the party reached Hermit Lake and a few the floor of the Ravine.

Friday was favorable for an enjoyable day on Mount Double Head by a party of thirty-two, twenty participating in a cross-country return in the afternoon.

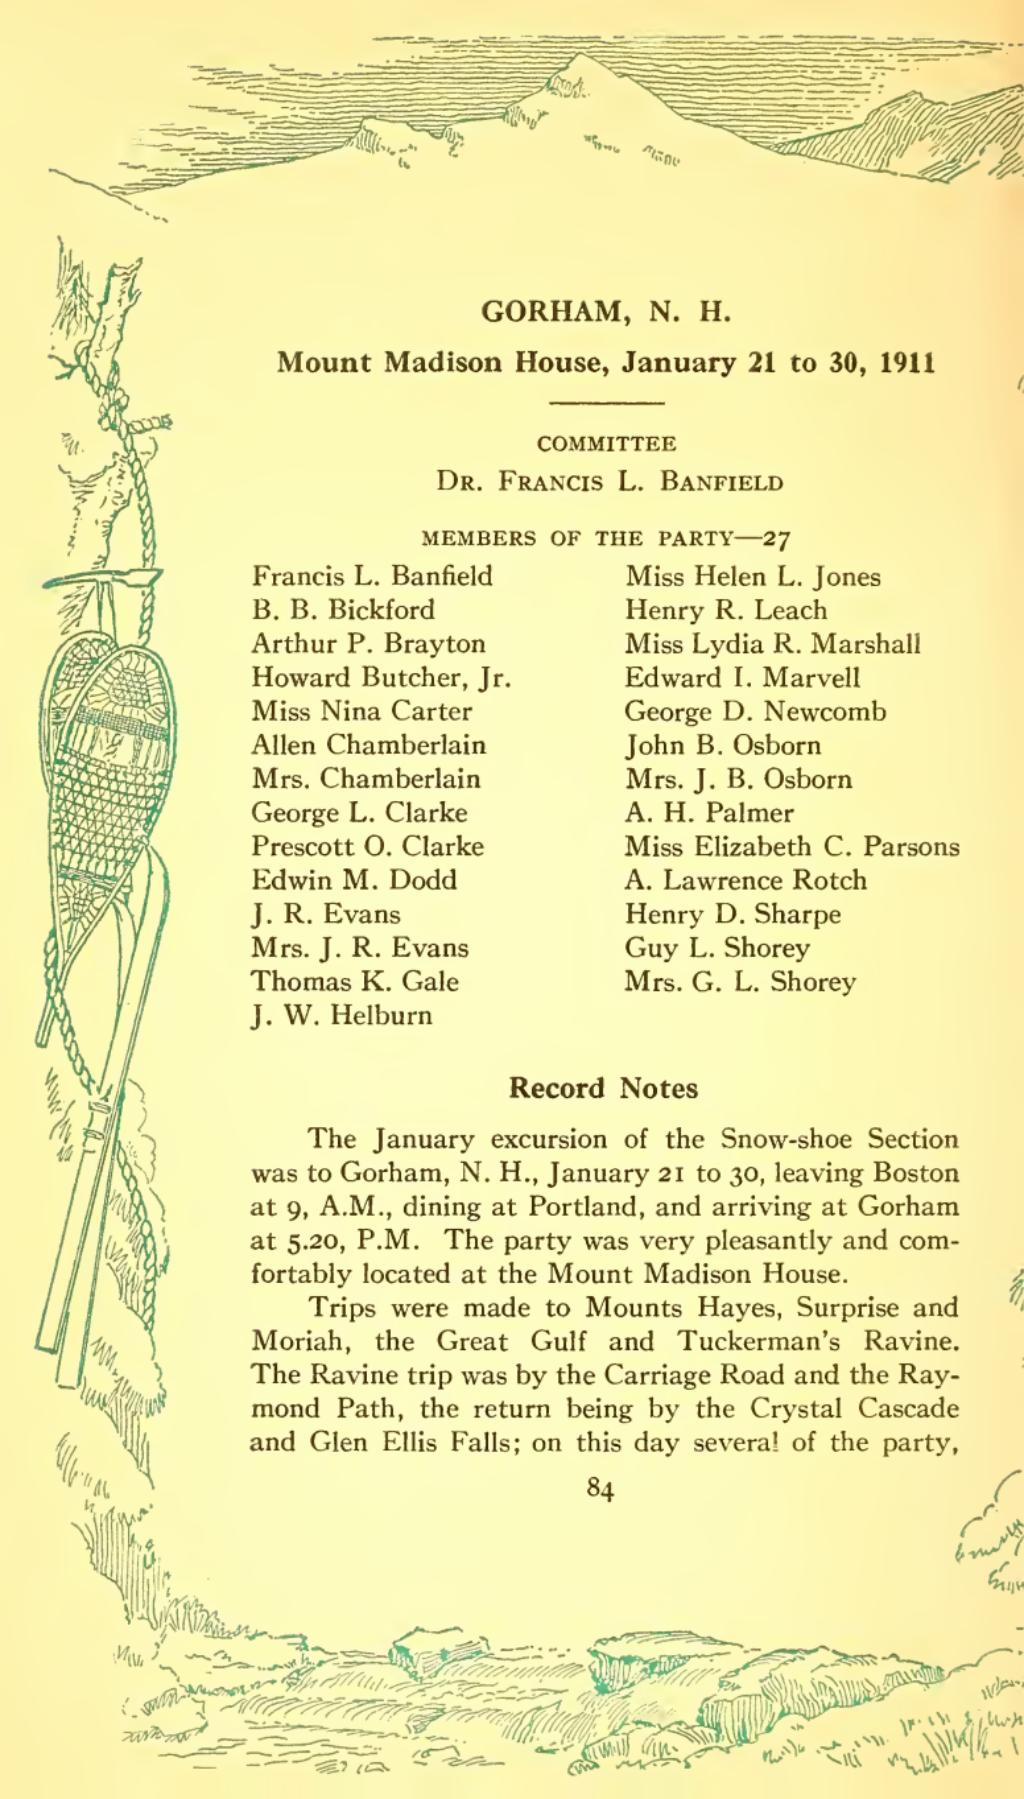

Saturday an invasion of a new country for the purpose of ascending Mount Isolation was undertaken by a party of eleven. Owing to the rough tote-road and heavy going, the last lumber camp, about two miles from the foot of the mountain, was not reached until noontime; from this point the walk into and the ascent of the mountain was through a park-like open forest of old growth, well worth the delays experienced earlier.

Sunday was stormy, preventing any special trip being planned.

Monday the forenoon was spent as usual in packing, the return to Boston being accomplished in the late afternoon and early evening. One hundred and fourteen persons arrived at Jackson with the party, one hundred and forty-one made up the complete list, and forty returned from Jackson with the party. The excursion was in charge of the Snow-shoe Committee, ably assisted by several members of the party in its efforts to make the event a success.

Record Notes

The January excursion of the Snow-shoe Section was to Gorham, N. H., January 21 to 30, leaving Boston at 9, A.M., dining at Portland, and arriving at Gorham at 5.20, P.M. The party was very pleasantly and comfortably located at the Mount Madison House.

Trips were made to Mounts Hayes, Surprise and Moriah, the Great Gulf and Tuckerman's Ravine. The Ravine trip was by the Carriage Road and the Raymond Path, the return being by the Crystal Cascade and Glen Ellis Falls; on this day several of the party, including the ladies, walked up the Carriage Road to the seventh mile-post, stopping at the Half-Way House, where lunch and hot coffee were served. One of the pleasures of the trip was the exciting ride down the four miles of the Carriage Road on a tandem toboggan. There were several camp-fire trips, cooking lunch out of doors, and a very enjoyable visit was made to a private camp near the state line, where an appetizing dinner was served by the cooks of the party. The weather was very favorable during the excursion except on Saturday, when the party started for Carter Notch, but on account of a northeast snow-storm, changed the plans, and went to the Glen House, where our cooks prepared dinner. An interesting visit was also made to the Berlin pulp and paper mills.

Record Notes

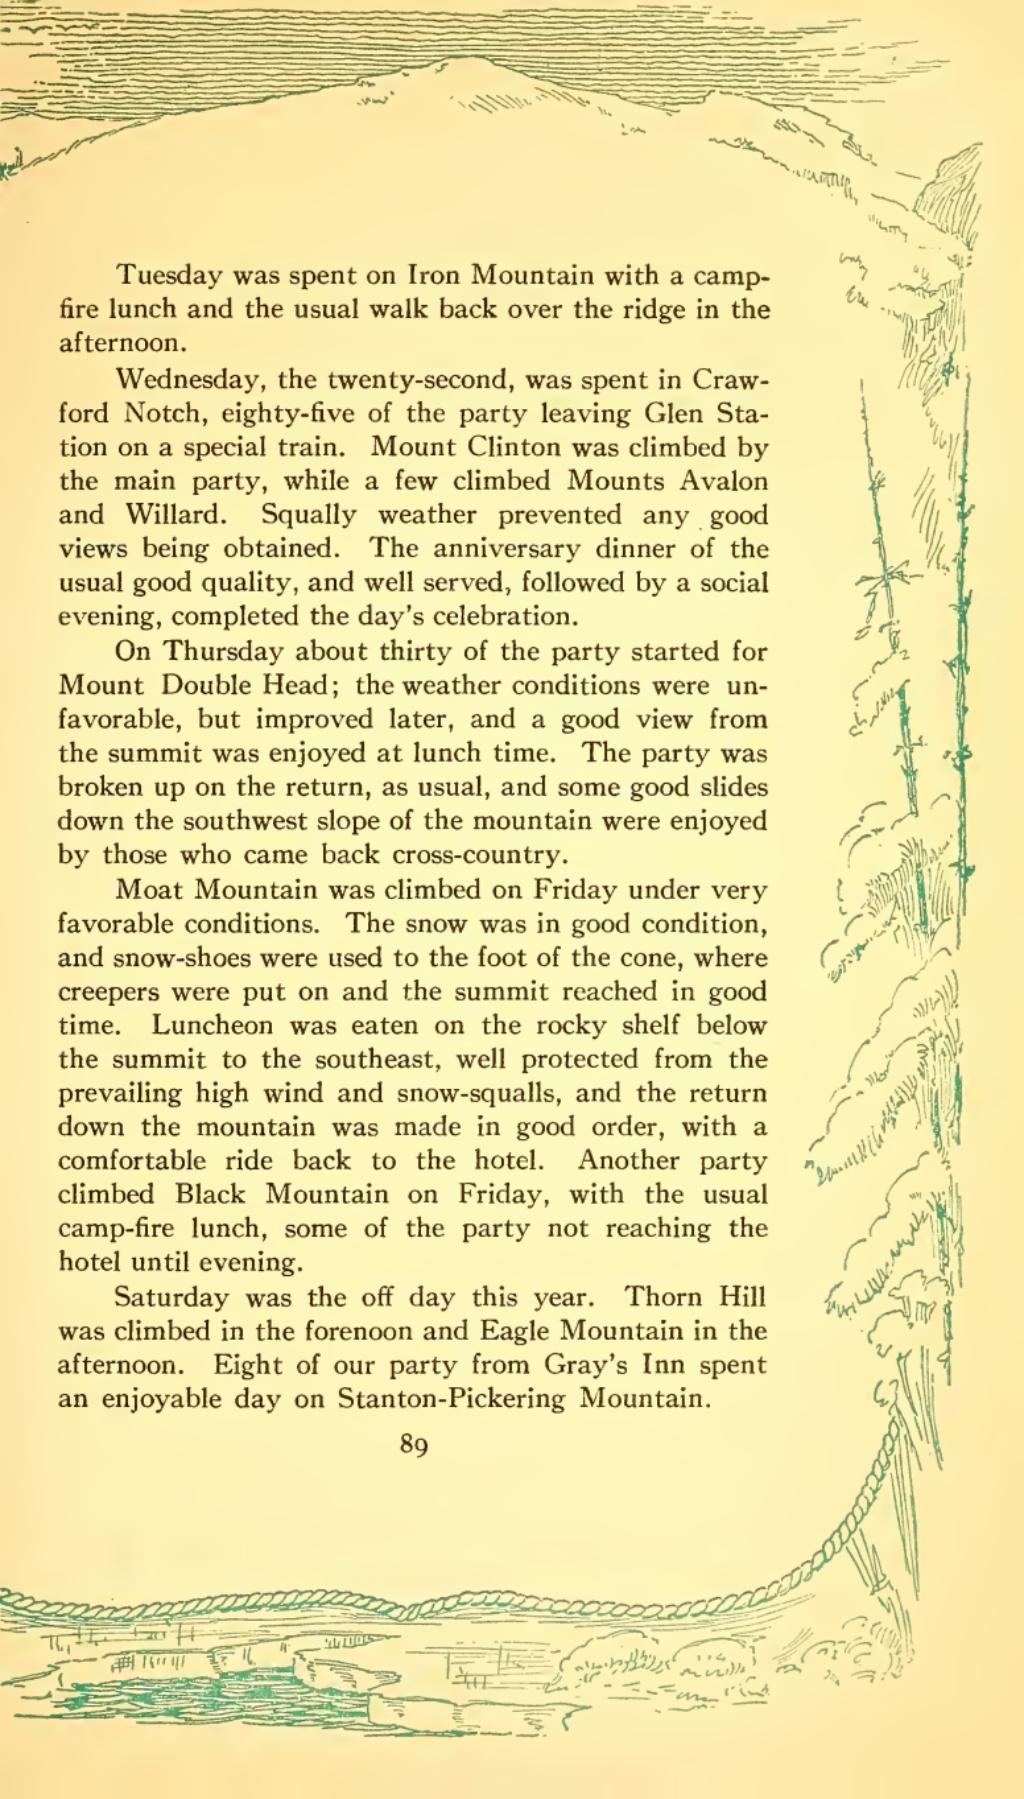

One hundred members and guests left Boston on a special train, ahead of the regular morning train, for Intervale, on Saturday, February 18, arriving at Glen Station about one-half hour ahead of schedule time. Mild, pleasant weather and good sleighing furnished conditions for an enjoyable sleigh-ride to the Iron Mountain House at Jackson.

A fall of about three feet of snow during the early part of February, followed by warm weather previous to our arrival, with six to eight feet of snow in the woods, provided favorable show-shoeing conditions.

The weather was very uniform, without any low temperature, fair weather prevailing with frequent snow-squalls and the accompanying wind.

Sunday was spent as usual, the majority climbing Thorn Mountain in the forenoon.

Monday eighty-four of the party started for Prospect Farm and Mount Wildcat. The shoeing was slow, due to the hard crust on the southern slope of the mountain; but all who reached the western summit in a snow-squall were well repaid by the grand view of Mount Washington and the ravines on its broken eastern slope that opened out before us as the clouds lifted.

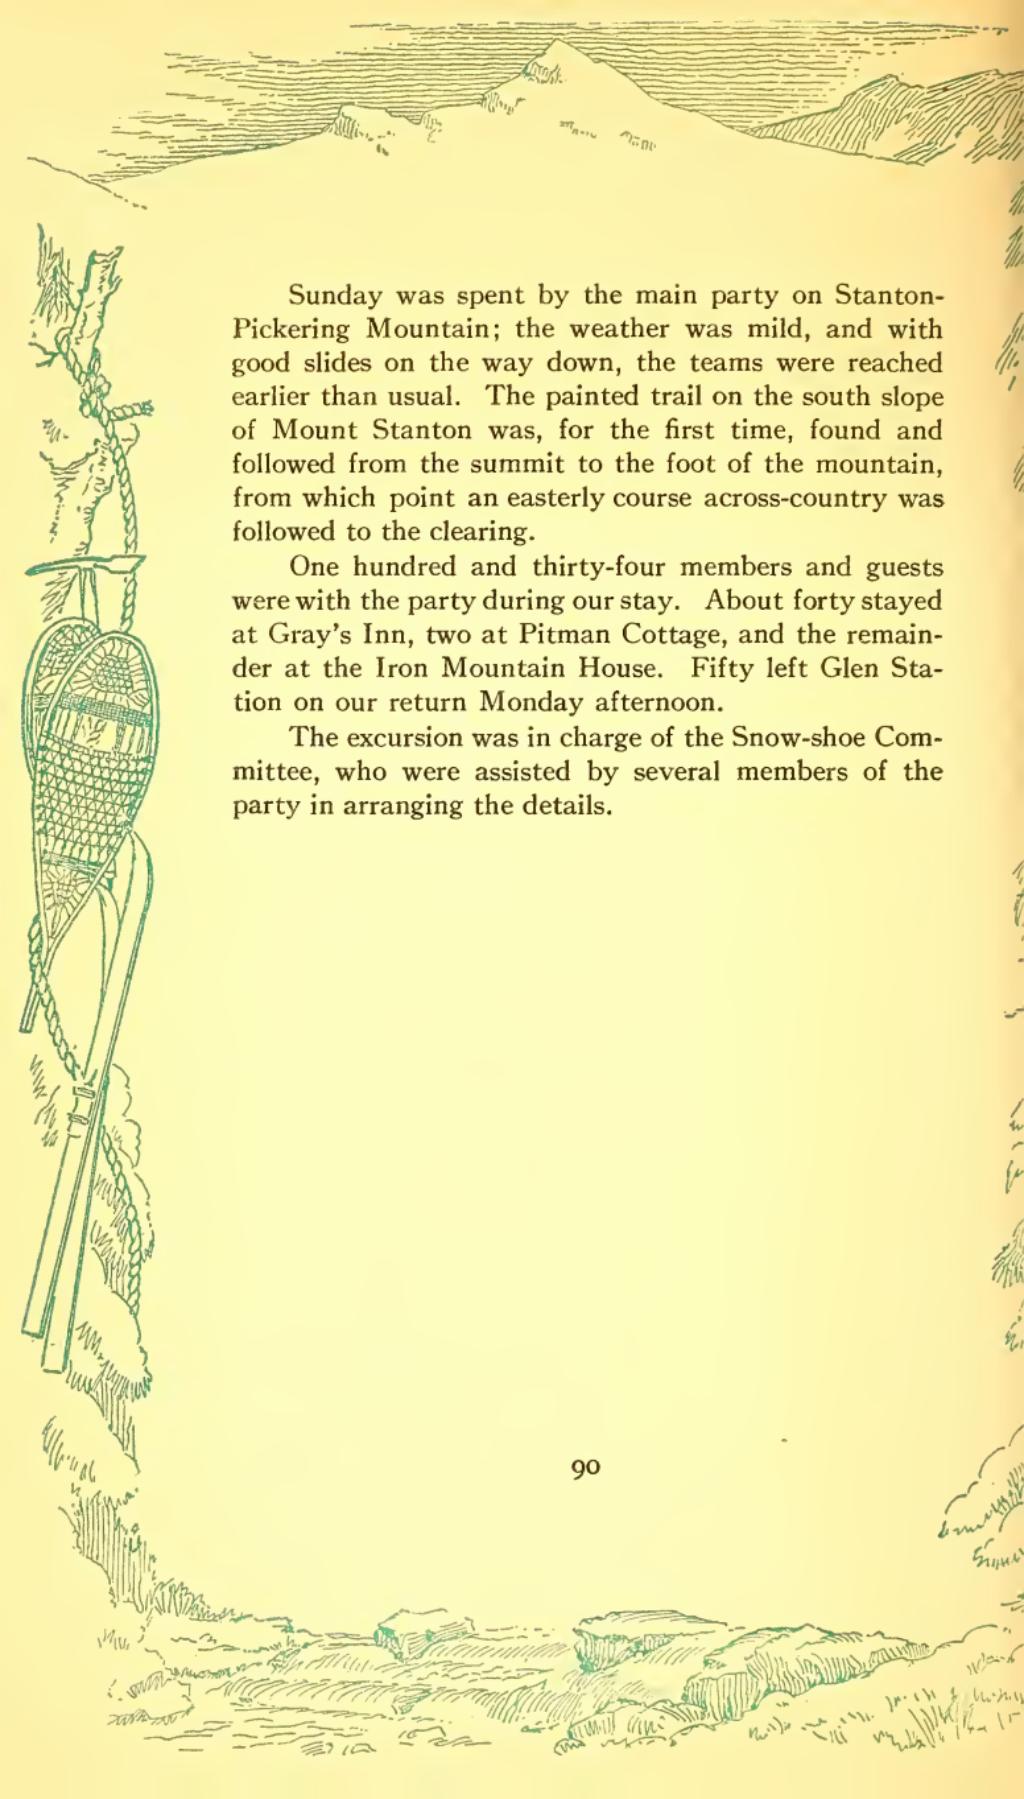

Tuesday was spent on Iron Mountain with a camp-fire lunch and the usual walk back over the ridge in the afternoon.

Wednesday, the twenty-second, was spent in Crawford Notch, eighty-five of the party leaving Glen Station on a special train. Mount Clinton was climbed by the main party, while a few climbed Mounts Avalon and Willard. Squally weather prevented any good views being obtained. The anniversary dinner of the usual good quality, and well served, followed by a social evening, completed the day's celebration.

On Thursday about thirty of the party started for Mount Double Head; the weather conditions were unfavorable, but improved later, and a good view from the summit was enjoyed at lunch time. The party was broken up on the return, as usual, and some good slides down the southwest slope of the mountain were enjoyed by those who came back cross-country.

Moat Mountain was climbed on Friday under very favorable conditions. The snow was in good condition, and snow-shoes were used to the foot of the cone, where creepers were put on and the summit reached in good time. Luncheon was eaten on the rocky shelf below the summit to the southeast, well protected from the prevailing high wind and snow-squalls, and the return down the mountain was made in good order, with a comfortable ride back to the hotel. Another party climbed Black Mountain on Friday, with the usual camp-fire lunch, some of the party not reaching the hotel until evening.

Saturday was the off day this year. Thorn Hill was climbed in the forenoon and Eagle Mountain in the afternoon. Eight of our party from Gray's Inn spent an enjoyable day on Stanton-Pickering Mountain.

Sunday was spent by the main party on Stanton-Pickering Mountain; the weather was mild, and with good slides on the way down, the teams were reached earlier than usual. The painted trail on the south slope of Mount Stanton was, for the first time, found and followed from the summit to the foot of the mountain, from which point an easterly course across-country was followed to the clearing.

One hundred and thirty-four members and guests were with the party during our stay. About forty stayed at Gray's Inn, two at Pitman Cottage, and the remainder at the Iron Mountain House. Fifty left Glen Station on our return Monday afternoon.

The excursion was in charge of the Snow-shoe Committee, who were assisted by several members of the party in arranging the details.
